Hoover Urges Freedom Of Seas For All Food Ships

GOOD WILL IS GREATEST Foe OF WAR, CLAIM

President Wants Preparedness Sufficient to Prevent Foreign Invasion

Washington (AP)—A peace which combines a full realization of American principles of justice with adequate preparation for defense; that no hostile foreign soldier shall ever set foot upon American soil is the hope and objective of President Hoover.

To this ideal and to the removal of dormant and apparent circumstances which might arise to threaten the security of the nation, his administration has dedicated itself. It is endeavoring to strengthen the spirit of international goodwill, "create respect and confidence" and "stimulate esteem between peoples."

The chief executive summed up the goal of his foreign policies in an address delivered last night under the auspices of the American Legion as the climax of its Armistice day celebration.

For the consideration of the nations of the world, Mr. Hoover held out a suggestion which he believed would prove effective as a starting point for the solution of the age-old, troublesome and trouble-producing problem of the freedom of the seas.

FOOD SHIPS PROPOSAL
"For many years and born of a poignant personal experience," he said, "I have held that food ships should be made free of any interference in times of war. I would place all vessels laden solely with food supplies on the same footing as hospital ships. The time has come when we should remove starvation of women and children from the weapons of warfare."

This proposal that food laden vessels be immune from attack by belligerent nations, the chief executive advanced as the "idea" which the world might consider as a "practical step which would solve a large part of the intrinsic problem" of maritime freedom in time of war, a solution which, he said, would result in a material reduction in necessary peacetime armaments.

Declaring the promotion of international goodwill more vital even than covenants to abolish war and mightier than armies and navies in defense of the world, Mr. Hoover said that it was in this interest that he visited the South American Republics and that this was why he welcomed the visit of the British prime minister to the United States.

"We have thought out loud together as men can not think in diplomatic notes," he said. "We made no commitments. We drove no discussion to final conclusions. We examined the areas of possible constructive action and possible controversy. We examined the pitfalls of international relations frankly and openly."

"With this wider understanding of mutual difficulties and aspirations we can each in our own sphere better tribute to broaden good will, to assist those forces which make peace in the world, to curb those forces which make for distrust."

GOOD WILL IN U. S.
"That is why I have endeavored to meet the leaders of those nations, for I have no fear that we are not able to impress every country with the single-minded good will which lies in the heart of the American people."

As another and immediate step in the direction of world peace, Mr. Hoover said the United States would reduce its naval strength in proportion to any other nation and added amid enthusiastic applause that he others could not go "too low for us."

In making his appeal for peace, Mr. Hoover made it clear that he was not unmindful of the difficulties along that road. He said this road requires preparedness for defense as well as preparedness for peace. On the side of defense, he said, amid enthusiastic applause that he was "for adequate preparedness as a guaranty that no foreign soldier shall ever step upon the soil of our country."

Of peace he warned that it was not "a static thing" that "to maintain peace is as dynamic in its requirements as the conduct of war."

His own address completed, the chief executive heard O. L. Bodan, hammer, national commander of the American Legion, make an impassioned plea for enactment of a universal service law, and declare that the American Legion "desires to serve in peace as it did in war."

LONDON PRESS CAUTIONS
London (AP)—The London press today was cautiously non-committal with regard to that suggestion on President Hoover's Armistice day speech that the safety of food ships in wartime be guaranteed to all nations.

The best part of the speech, the London Times said, was that expressing his conviction the world is to come more genuinely inclined toward peace.

"Certainly," the paper commented, "the onus for the naval conference in January are becoming more favorable and an answer to the last crossed message the conference will have given a chance for success."

SHOE STORE BANDIT ACTS AS CLERK AND WAITS ON CUSTOMER

Chicago (AP)—A robber took time off during a robbery last night to sell a lady a pair of shoes.

The Grossman Shoe store was held up when Mrs. Samuel Brodie entered to buy a pair of slippers. Lots of robbers would have shoved her to one side and then would have run away with the $125 already taken from the manager and clerk. This robber was different.

He patiently listened to Mrs. Brodie's shoe requirements and then rummaged through the stock until he found what she wanted. He gave her, Mrs. Brodie says, an excellent fit and she paid him and walked out.

Nor long afterward so did the robber.

COAST ARTILLERY IMPROVEMENT HELD UP BY SHORT FUNDS

Major General Reports Appropriations Prohibit Rapid Development

Washington (AP)—Difficulties encountered through lack of funds in carrying out proposed improvements, changes and projects of the coast artillery were outlined today by Major General Andrew Hero, Jr., chief of that service, in his annual report to Secretary Good.

In this connection, he cited the "program for modernization of our most important harbor defenses which was approved in 1919," and the situation of anti-aircraft defense.

"Attempt has been made," he said, "to establish a reasonable program for anti-aircraft defense and estimates have been made to this end. The funds for the accomplishment of these projects have been lacking."

"The situation in overseas garrisons is somewhat better than in the continental United States. It is hoped to have the fire control installations for the 16-inch batteries on the Pacific side of the Panama Canal completed with money now in prospect. In Hawaii, the installation for Battery Williams (16-inch rifles) will not be completed for some years on the basis of present appropriations."

LACK REPAIR FUNDS
He reported progress in the development of sound ranging devices for detection of targets under water, in the air and on land, in some weapons and in training and gunnery practice, but asserted:

"The condition of material in harbor defenses, especially fire control installations, has shown no marked improvement. This equipment continues to evidence a progressive deterioration due to the lack of sufficient personnel and funds to exercise, test, maintain and repair it."

"For the fiscal year 1931, funds for the partial rehabilitation of this material are in prospect but only at the expense of new construction of the material needed for the completion of new 16-inch batteries."

Presenting another aspect of the situation, he said, "marked progress has been made in developing, testing and standardizing new anti-aircraft equipment" and its efficiency "greatly exceeds that of the material now issued to our regular army anti-aircraft organizations."

eulogized the president's "practical, vigorous initiative in implementing the Kellogg pact." While holding that the foodships suggestion "merely receives the attention of the civilized world," he doubted very much "whether all attempts to humanize war are anything but a pitiful illusion."

CRITICISM IN ITALY

Rome (AP)—Tevere, Rome Daily, commenting today upon President Hoover's Armistice day speech, said in a caustic vein Mr. Hoover has not yet gone to the bottom in his examination of the causes disturbing peace.

If the desire for parity is recognized as the determining motive of wars, said the paper, the Americans, British and French have only to adopt the Mussolinian formula of the "right of armaments" common to all great powers.

Tevere considered the most important points of the president's speech those touching the league of nations and the freedom of the seas. It remarked the United States remained irreconcilably hostile to the league, preferring the Kellogg pact which not only left them free to choose the way suiting them best but left them the arbiters, no matter what the situation.

As to freedom of the seas Tevere professed to find the president's ideas entirely contrary to British traditions but admirably serving American expansionist interests.

The editorial concluded: "The reality proves that the most formidable antagonism between the two powerful imperialisms, English and American, is ever alive and perhaps increasing."

LOCAL BUSINESS MEN VICTIMIZED BY CHECK ARTIST

Police Want to Know if Other Stores Were Duped by Woman

Police Chief George T. Prim Tuesday morning instituted an investigation to determine how many worthless checks had been passed on Appleton merchants in the last month by a woman named Mrs. Edna Peebles, whose address is believed to be Mountain View.

The matter was first brought to the attention of the police when officials of the Conway hotel reported she had passed a worthless check for $25 in October. A warrant was issued and Mrs. Peebles was arrested Sunday by Chicago police. She first promised not to fight extradition and said she would go back to Appleton.

Sergeant Matthew McGinnis was sent to Chicago Monday but in the meantime Mrs. Peebles had consulted an attorney and decided to fight extradition. She promised to settle the matter, however, by paying the check. After a consultation with Judge Theodore Berg and Assistant District Attorney Oscar J. Schmeigle, Chief Prim instructed Sergeant McGinnis to settle the case and save the time and expense of fighting the extradition case.

However, Tuesday morning reports reached the police station from two more local firms that had been victimized of $15 and $25 respectively. Chief Prim believes the woman may have passed bad checks at other Appleton stores and he has asked the merchants to report to him if they are holding checks issued by this woman. He plans to secure warrants and to rearrest the woman in Chicago and to secure extradition papers to bring her back here.

The officer charges they started a brawl and when he attempted to stop them they tried to beat him up. He handcuffed them and brought them to the jail at Seymour where they were held until Monday when they were taken into court.

ENDED COLD CAUSED BY RIDE IN NIGHT AIR

Relief Began Quickly When Doctor Advised Home Use of Pleasant Method

An entirely new method of ending colds is now proving itself quickest and most dependable in hundreds of Appleton homes.

Miss Eva Flinn, for example, caught a severe cold when she left her coat at home and the air became damp and chilly later in the evening. As a result, her bronchitis became badly congested. Her throat was inflamed by constant coughing and her voice was so hoarse it was embarrassing to try to talk.

Acting on the advice of her doctor, then, she started taking Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Relief began quickly and that night her sleep passages were less congested, the "everish," "achy" feeling was gone and she was able to sleep without coughing but once or twice during the night. Next day she was able to return to work and in another day or so, the doctor reports, an examination showed that all trace of the cold was gone.

Note: See other cases being reported daily in this paper—all certified by the attending physician. Ayer's Pectoral was hospital certified as the best of eleven widely used medicines tested for heat, cold, cough and chest colds because it gave the quickest, surest relief with absolute safety. It is now featured by all leading druggists.

THE YOKE OF JESUS

To learn of God we must learn by doing the will of God. Next, we read that the work must be under a yoke. "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me," says Jesus. So shall we be his disciples. This seems like a hard saying, for the yoke is suggestive of slavery. In the day of Jesus the Romans, when they conquered enemies made the enemies less under a yoke as a sign of surrender to bondage. There is a nobility meaning in the figure of a yoke, however. The yoke stands for controlled power—for a tamed or domesticated power. "Jesus what I have always thought," cries the critic of Christianity. "The religion of Jesus comes men down into weakness. It robs them of the free, spontaneous expression of life-force." Is there not, however, a taming into strength which is the secret of the progress of civilization itself? The men who first domesticated wild animals did so to use the strength of wildness for the good of mankind; but they soon discovered that the animals tamed to wear yokes are stronger than those roaming the plains in freedom—except, perhaps, for sudden, freethought outbursts of mad energy. We hear a good deal today about the duty of just living our natural lives, of letting ourselves go. Sometimes this advice is sound, as indicating righteous revolt against the unreal, the artificial. In general, however, the life under the yoke of a law which is utilized by being obeyed is the strong life. Any high, intellectual or artistic, or moral achievement, is possible only through the yokes appropriate to the various realms of endeavor. Acceptance of the yoke of Jesus, obedience to his law, brings one into companionship with the God who himself accepts the yokes which he puts upon the shoulders of men. The yoke is easy and the burden light. Some loads are too heavy to be pulled at all without the yoke of Christ.

What are some of the practical limitations that I should welcome or experience in assuming the yoke of Jesus? With whom may I begin to share this "yoke" experience now?

Judge Sentences Merrill Shaw, 21, to Reformatory at Green Bay

Merrill Shaw, 21, Milwaukee, was sentenced to serve one year in the state reformatory at Green Bay by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Tuesday morning when he pleaded guilty to larceny of an automobile.

The car, owned by Kent Lawrence, Hotel Appleton, was stolen early last Sunday morning and recovered by Shawano officials when Shaw and a companion, Ernest Telvita, were picked up on suspicion in Shawano. Lawrence did not know of the theft of the machine until the car had been recovered.

Shaw and his companion were taken into custody for examination after Shawano police noticed they resembled the two young men who held up the State Bank at Black Creek last Friday afternoon and escaped with $735 in cash.

Sheriff Fred W. Giese and George H. Peters, cashier of the bank, went to Shawano Sunday but Peters couldn't identify the pair. Shaw was then taken back to Appleton and Telvita was released after an investigation showed he had not been with Shaw when the car was stolen.

Wounded Illinois Bandit Admits Robbery Of Bank

Chicago (AP)—William S. Ragan had been shot by a prowler at the Chicago and made good—then went back to Fisher, Ill., by his own story to police and "made bad."

"I did it. I must have been drunk," he told officers when arrested yesterday for the attempted robbery last Friday of the Fisher State Bank. "I'll plead guilty, but I won't say any more now. I'm in such pain from the wounds in my legs."

The man who held up the Fisher bank was shot in both legs in escaping. His automobile was trailed 275 miles by a school teacher and Ragan's arrest followed identification of his motorcar as the one used in the hold up.

Ragan is superintendent of the Linde Air Products company, a subsidiary of the Union Carbide and Carbon company. Officials said he was well paid and was soon to have been promoted to a position of even greater responsibility. He formerly was employed at Detroit and Indianapolis.

Police said following Ragan's confession that the Fisher holdup may not have been Ragan's first. The investigations into recent bank robberies at Kankakee, Ill., and in Wisconsin were regarded as a result of statements attributed to the prisoner.

Ragan and Mrs. Ragan were visiting in Danville, Ill., Friday. Ragan left early that day saying he was going for a drive. He returned that evening and with Mrs. Ragan drove back to Chicago the next day. Mrs. Ragan said she did not know her husband had been wounded until after arrival in Chicago. He said he

Not Only Complete Laundry Equipment For the Price of a Washer, But the BEST

Wash Day Slavery Is Completely Abolished with 1900 Equipment

It is now possible for every home to own complete laundry equipment — washer, wringer, and ironer, at the price formerly paid for a washer alone. Volume production, plus a new and successful sales policy, permits us to put the 1900 Whirlpool Washer and Ironer in your home for much less. At the same time we offer a finer and more efficient mechanism than was ever before obtainable.

For 32 years, the Nineteen Hundred Corporation — a pioneer in the industry — has been engaged in producing fine laundry equipment. The 1900 Whirlpool Washer is the only one available with a single vane circulator and no center post. It can't grab the clothes, and cannot tangle if properly used. The Ironer, too, represents an achievement. Investigate them both today.

The 1900 Washer handles eight pounds of dry clothes per tubful. This means that an ordinary family washing can be done in an hour. The single vane circulator forces the water through the clothes. The sediment zone assures fresh, clean clothes always. The wringerhead ironer — interchangeable in 10 seconds — has a 24 inch roll and does splendid work.

The 1900 Whirlpool Washer comes in three styles and prices depending upon the type of tub and wringer employed. The Standard Model is $100, the Imperial $125, and the DeLuxe $150. Each one represents the finest value in its field. The 1900 Ironer sells for $49.50. The savings in labor, time and clothes more than equal the moderate cost.

And remember — this entire splendid laundry equipment may be purchased over a period of 20 months, the small charge to be paid with your light bill. THERE ARE NO INTEREST CHARGES.

U. S. MARRIAGES SHOW DECREASE; MORE DIVORCES

Weddings Fall Off 1.5 Per Cent While Divorces Increase 2 Per Cent

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Arduous and diligent search into the pile of mail received from the government's various information and press bureaus in the past fortnight or so reveals the following assortment of carefully sifted facts:

The Bureau of Fisheries is looking for some appetizing fish culturists. Duties: Care for fish and fish eggs, handle and sell fish and prepare fish food. Salary: $1020 a year. The states distributed 65,500,000 trees for planting last year, under the Clarke-McNary act providing for their cooperation with the federal government in growing and distributing trees. That included 20,000,000 forest trees.

There were 1,192,497 marriages performed in the United States during 1928, as compared with 1,291,053 in 1927, a decrease of 1.5 per cent. There were 155,523 divorces granted in 1928, as compared with 152,007 in 1927, an increase of 2 per cent.

Approximately 1200 pieces of educational legislation—educational acts of general application—were passed in the United States during 1928-29. Of these, 500 were of general application, 500,000 tons of coal in 1928 as against 553,422,000 in 1927. These figures from the Bureau of Mines also show 1928 such mines operating in 1927 and only 6150 in 1928.

Hog cholera is slightly less prevalent this year than last and the 1928 losses from hog cholera were lower than at any other time since the Department of Agriculture began to keep a record.

The 1929 travel season closing at the end of September brought 3,248,264 visitors to America's national parks and monuments administered by the Interior Department. That was 223,420 more than in 1928. National parks are more popular than national monuments, drawing about five-sixths of the visitors included in the above figures.

There will be about 5 per cent more poultry birds on farms at the end of 1929 than at the end of 1928. There were 2.4 per cent fewer hens and pullets on farms at the beginning of last month than a year before, but the number of young chickens of this year's hatch was about 10 per cent greater.

In 1928 a total of 45,531 miles of local and county roads was improved, exclusive of state roads. That included 30,000 miles of surfaced roads and 15,000 miles of graded and drained roads. More mileage was improved in 1927, but a greater percentage of the 1928 improvements was devoted to surfacing.

If anyone wonders what's going to be done with all these improved roads the answer also comes through the mails—from the American Automobile Association.

The A. A. A. says there will be approximately 35,000,000 motor vehicles registered in the United States by 1930, which is more than the number in the entire world today.

SCHOLARSHIP ALWAYS IMPORTANT, SAYS HOLT

"Scholarship, always an important item in college life, is equally important in the business world."

Frank O. Holt, registrar of the University of Wisconsin, told students of Lawrence college at convocation Monday morning.

The speaker cited statistics to prove his point, which indicated that students who stand in the upper third of their classes at college are reasonably sure of attaining corresponding success in their post-graduation days. Employees of the Wisconsin Bell and Telephone company, he pointed out, eventually receive ratings in position which are startlingly similar to the positions they held in the undergraduate academic world.

STATE EDUCATIONAL HEAD TO SPEAK HERE

A solution for high school construction problems here may be reached when John Callahan, state superintendent of schools, gives an address before the general public at Appleton high school at 8 o'clock Friday evening, according to D. J. Rohan, superintendent of schools.

Mr. Callahan will be in the city all day Friday conducting an investigation of high school building problems. Distribution maps of high school population are to be distributed at the mass meeting.

The topic of Mr. Callahan's address has not been announced, but he intends to speak on a construction program for high schools. He will give a summary of findings gathered at the mass meeting.

CANADA IS URGED TO ADOPT STATE CONTROL OF RADIO

Manager of Huge Broadcasting Company Makes Recommendation

Toronto—The establishment of provincial broadcasting companies in each of Canada's provinces under whose control would come the radio functions of each territory is advocated by R. W. Ashcroft, manager of the Trans-Canada broadcasting company, as the only means of establishing Canadian broadcasting on a peering basis.

Under the plan outlined by Ashcroft, privately owned stations would be done away with and the various stations in each province would be grouped under the provincial company, regardless of actual ownership. The advertising rates for all of these stations would be laid down by the Dominion Radio Commission.

Ashcroft's plan would set at the head of each provincial organization three or more salaried members to carry on the business in their territory. It would be their duty to see that all advertising measured up to a predetermined standard and to carry on all business incurred by various stations under their jurisdiction.

"The stations," Ashcroft says, "should act as common carriers and rent their facilities, when available, to any reputable newspaper, church, mission, or other organization, whose programs are of a character consonant with the standards established from time to time by the commission."

"Musical programs should not occupy over 3 per cent of advertising, the United States."

TRESIZE WRITES FOR CHURCH MAGAZINE

"Church Management," a magazine devoted to church policies and administration, will publish in current series of articles by Fred W. Trezise, associate professor of engineering at Lawrence college. Publicity to Reach the Student, is the title of Trezise's work.

The series is the result of methods used in various educational centers to attract and direct attention of the college students to the program and interests of churches in college communities.

propaganda and all objectionable direct advertising should be prohibited.

"The federal government should lend its support to broadcasting by having its various departments, such as the Canadian National Railways, the Department of Agriculture and the postoffice, put on sponsored programs and the provincial government should likewise sponsor educational and agricultural programs and equip schools with radio receiving sets."

"The federal government should also provide, without charge, inter-city telephone service for the transmission of chain programs. The present equipment of the Canadian National Railways could be utilized for that purpose."

"I firmly believe," Ashcroft further states, "that if the number of radio stations of requisite power in Canada is limited in the above manner and they were wisely controlled by an active Dominion Radio Commission, more progress would be made under private ownership than under government ownership and operation. Under these conditions, Canada would rapidly achieve a position on the radio map of the world."

"Musical programs should not occupy over 3 per cent of advertising, the United States."

DECISION IN CASE AROUSES SENATOR

Texas Resents Reference to His State in "Unwritten Law" Case

BY RUBY A. SLACK

Washington bureau of Post-Crescent.

Washington—It is a slender on the state of Texas to intimate that it is legal there for a man to be married to his wife's paramour if the wife and the paramour are caught in adultery, but that no Texas court has held that a man is justified in killing his wife under such circumstances.

In handing down his opinion confirming the 2-year sentence of a man convicted of killing his wife, where the man's attorney had pleaded the "unwritten law," Justice Owen said that the present law is repudiated by Anglo-Saxon people and that no English court has ever held that an outraged husband is justified in killing his own wife and child and say except in the state of Texas.

Senator Connally said that Dallas Texas judges had been believers of under such circumstances, but that the courts had never held that such murder is justifiable or that such circumstances do more than mitigate the crime, justifying a less severe sentence.

SLUMP EVIDENT IN CAR MARKET DURING OCTOBER

Madison — (C)—The Wisconsin automobile market has experienced an October slump for the second time in five years. New pleasure cars for the entire state for October numbered 6,226 while, in October, 1928 there were 7,119 sold.

It is maintained that had not 1,942 new registrations throughout the state, Chevrolet's stayed in second place.

Commercial vehicles also stayed under last year's October total — 1924 the October and 1925 last.

However, with two months to go in 1929 the annual total is expected to exceed the 1928 total of 1927 the year-breaking year. The 1928 total to date is 19,010.

The figures are from the secretary of state's automobile division.

BUILDING NOT TO BURN

Do we build to BURN?

The frightful fire waste of this country has often caused such a question.

Much has been accomplished toward improved conditions, but in many instances there is a woeful lack of foresight in providing adequate defenses against fire, especially in the construction of buildings for mercantile and industrial use, hospitals, schools, hotels and other structures where large numbers of people are housed.

There are numerous activities, maintained by the Stock Fire Insurance companies, which aim for a better day when America shall consistently build NOT TO BURN.

Better Building Practice

One of these activities is the Committee on Construction of Buildings of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, which assembles the best available information on proper building methods. For many years it has been the leading clearing house of information in safety construction.

The information in its possession is based upon the latest scientific and engineering facts and is supported by more than fifty years experience in organized fire prevention by the 239 Stock Fire Insurance companies which transact the great bulk of the fire insurance business.

Municipal Codes

Few indeed are the municipal building codes that have not used in whole or in part the information and services of the Department of Building Construction. This department has constantly worked for many years in co-operation with officials and others in authority in the interest of safety construction.

Better construction retards fire waste and contributes to the consequent decline in the average cost of fire insurance.

Women Have Something to Say!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has ridiculed into oblivion that ancient prejudice which excluded women from a voice in council. Today, in millions of homes, the delicious flavor of LUCKY STRIKE fills the room as the family group respects the opinion of its women folk.

"toasting did it"

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

PEACE SUPPORTERS IN SADDLE
It has been said that M. Briand's eloquence is the best antidote in France for sabre rattling. Proof of this was evident when the foreign minister and former premier, in an address on government policy which is reported to have been one of the greatest of his life, re-established complete sway over the chamber of deputies. Twice in succession it voted confidence in the new government of Andre Tardieu by larger majorities than the ministry had dared hope for.
Briand's speech was a defense of his foreign policy which is of vital importance to France and the peace of Europe at this time. That policy is one of reconciliation and permanent understanding with Germany. At the same time, he assured the country that no chances would be taken with possible duplicity in Germany, where the Nationalists just now are attracting attention by the plebiscite they have forced on the government for ratification or rejection of the Young reparations settlement. Evacuation will be halted until the result of this referendum is known. It is as certain as anything can be in European politics that the agreement will be ratified and that Germany will execute it in good faith. But France is always on her guard against machinations of the German monarchists and for that no one can blame her.
In the meantime all France, and the world for that matter, will rest easier, with its confidence in M. Briand as both a pacificator and defender of France's true national interests. Because of the international situation alone, it is to be hoped the Tardieu government will survive until the reparations question is finally determined and the London conference in January has completed its efforts to bring about real naval disarmament. In the latter connection it is of significance to note that Mussolini is reported to have changed his attitude on the submarine issue and now favors the position of the United States and Great Britain for abolishment of this type of war craft.
While the French political situation is being temporarily clarified, it is of interest that the MacDonald government in Great Britain has also received two votes of confidence on major questions of foreign policy. It was upheld by a large majority on recognition of Soviet Russia, drawing support from the Liberals as a body and from a number of Conservatives. It has also been given almost unanimous support by the house on its Indian policy. It is true that the latter policy involved nothing new. Nevertheless, Mr. MacDonald's statement that the time and method of making good the British pledge to India of ultimate Dominion status can only be determined in the indefinite future, is of importance.
All indications are that the Labor ministry will be able to sustain itself until after the disarmament conference. When it fails it will probably be on some domestic controversy rather than over foreign relations. Thus far the supporters of the great peace movement have maintained their supremacy in England, France, Germany and the United States, and for all practical purposes, that is the world.

RED CROSS APPEAL
Religious leaders of many different faiths have joined in asking general support of the Red Cross roll call. They point out the tremendous amount of good accomplished by this organization and the need in the world for its services. One of them adds another reason for contributing to this cause. He says:
"I plead for an extension of our Red Cross membership until we can call a roll of every adult American. I plead for it because of the spiritual reaction I visualize in our millions of contributing members." There is, indeed, something ennobling in sharing in the maintenance of such an organization, in uniting in its work of mercy and human betterment. Responding promptly to the yearly roll call of the Red Cross is a habit that every American should cultivate.

WAR LORD MUSSOLINI
Benito Mussolini tells his subjects it is idle to talk about peace; that there are crises in international affairs when there is no way out but war, and that only fools will suppose that talking will remedy matters. It is quite true that more has been said and written about peace in the last year than in the whole decade preceding it. You cannot pick up any newspaper or magazine without reading some appeal for peace. It has actually become possible for an American to urge a reduction in the size of the navy without being branded as a second Benedict Arnold.

The question, however, is this—just how much good is all of this talking and writing going to do? Are we really bringing world peace nearer? Or is Mussolini right? Will there presently come a time when all of our fair words will be blown away and we shall plunge frantically into another war, as we have in the past? The answer, of course, is—it's up to us. We can have continued peace if we really want it. War is never "inevitable." It is never, as Mussolini says, the only practical way out of a difficulty.

Consider, for instance, the situation in 1914. Looking back it seems almost incredible that the war should have begun as it did. Nobody wanted it. Surely, no one will contend that the murder of an Austrian archduke by a Serbian fanatic made it necessary for all of Europe to go to war. The foreign offices of the nations involved, however, were cursed with the presence of a number of gentlemen who had Mussolini's idea—the idea that war is the only way of settling a dispute between nations. So war came; and the world paid, for the blindness of those statesmen, some 5,000,000 young lives.

Now, eleven years after the close of that war, the world is talking peace. And die-hards of the old school, like Mussolini, are resentful. They are trying to tell us that we are doomed, forever, to go on blundering from one catastrophe to another. If we are wise, we will go on talking about peace; talking about it in season and out of season, until the closed minds of the Mussolinis of this world are cracked open and a little daylight seeps in to enlighten them. We can have everlasting peace if we want it. And the only way to prove that we want it is to keep talking about it.

A MARKET CASUALTY
Another woeful tale of the stock slump. A concert pianist and "cigarette heiress" of Omaha says she has lost her entire fortune of $900,000, and owes her broker $30,000 besides.

She was gambling on margins, and felt safe because she had a big backlog of perfectly good tobacco stock. When the market started to drop, she sent the stock to protect her margin. The market dropped farther than she expected. The broker held on as long as he could, but when the paid-up stock was all eaten up, like Egypt's fat kine by the lean kine in the Bible story, he had to let go. So the cigarette heiress can charge about a million to experience, and, if she smokes, she can reach for a Lucky.

She is luckier, though, than many a plunger who played the same game in the same way. Like Tommie Tucker, she can "sing for her supper."

Dr. William Beebe, well-known marine biologist, recently brought from an expedition to Bermuda a silver hatchetfish, whose battery or violet lights point downward while its eyes look forward. A jet-black whale with a brilliant torch on its forehead also was brought back.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK
New York—Opening night of the opera season is the annual rally for the folk of pedigree and wealth.
On that occasion the spectacle of costumed tenors and sopranos against the Joseph Urban stage splendor is secondary to the big parade of silk hats and ornate wraps. The music fades out in the glitter of the diamond horseshoe.
The vast, old red plush house, with its tier of boxes, balconies and galleries like the layers of a semi-circular cake, is a gala scene in a self-conscious way. The audience is there, not so much to hear, as to see and be seen.

LESE MAJESTY
That is, almost everybody excepting Otto Kahn, the Messers of the opera.
Mr. Kahn this year stood in the directors' box, instead of his own, to better hear the music of "Mignon Lescaut" and watch Lucrozia Bori's elegant performance.

It so happened that the bank's figure cut out of the view of a stanzas, a woman, behind the adjacent loge, and she was angry about it. Her noisy complaint finally attracted Mr. Kahn's attention and he turned his head to see what the trouble was. The woman was the patron of the Met to one side with an imperious cry and he obligingly stepped out of her way.

Soon, however, he was back again, seemingly absorbed in the stage's beauties. This time the woman, who had paid several dollars to see what costs Mr. Kahn thousands, leaned forward to "bawl him out." As she did so, an amused occupant of the loge remarked, "I wouldn't do that, that's Otto Kahn."

In embarrassment the woman subsided weakly to a seat on the parterre steps.
EXCLUSIVE OPERA CLUB
In the Metropolitan is a private opera club and it would be a good place to hunt out the most eligible of the town's bachelors if it wasn't that women are admitted only on Saturday afternoons and then as invited guests.

The club occupies the Omnibus box, which seats 61 persons, and therefore is restricted to slightly more than a hundred members, on the theory that about half will attend any one performance. Not all are bachelors, but marriage causes most of the resignations.

J. P. Morgan, Senator Robert F. Wagner and Jules S. Bache are members. Lawrence White, son of Stanford White, and William A. Rockefeller were admitted this season. The initiation fee of $100 and the annual dues of $100 entitle the members to attend the opera on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings throughout the season.

The present club grew out of the old Vaudeville club, formed, some say, by Ward McAllister, after the opera house fire in 1892. That year there was no opera; so the town bloods leased quarters in the building and arranged special, all-star vaudeville acts.

When the operatic performances were resumed, the Vaudeville club made its entertainments supplementary, enjoying them after the opera, until the latter's management objected. Then, in 1898, the members decided to continue a congenial association by taking over the special box, meanwhile keeping the club rooms behind it for a place in which to meet and refresh themselves.

Today's Anniversary

THE SEWING MACHINE
On Nov. 12, 1850, a patent on the first sewing machine to sew curving seams was issued to Allen B. Wilson, New York cabinet maker and inventor. He also introduced the rotary hook and stationary bobbin.
Wilson's invention aided materially in popularizing the sewing machine which was just then being used by the great majority of the world as the result of other inventions by Walter Hunt, Elias Howe, John Bachelder, Isaac Singer and A. E. Gibbs.

As the fundamental patents obtained by these pioneer inventors have gradually expired the most satisfactory features of the older machines have been adopted by all modern sewing machine manufacturers.

Today also is the anniversary of the birth, on Nov. 12, 1770, of Joseph Hopkinson, author of "Hail, Columbia."

FATE OF THE MAN WITHOUT A PILL

What is likely to happen if a constipated pill taker is unable to get his regular physic?
This was the second question in the fifth health questionnaire recently given here. Nearly a thousand readers took the test. Here are some of the wrong answers:
He goes constipated. He gets sick. He will become constipated. His bowels will become badly clogged for the muscles will be unfit for use. He is likely to become more constipated. He will be tied up again. Constipation. There is likely to be serious interruption of the peristaltic movement resulting in real constipation. It gives one a belly ache. He will be bound up.
The man who sent in that answer about the various interruption of peristalsis evidently thought we were fooling, and that the confirmed pill taker just pretended he was constipated. This was easily the wrongest answer received.
Here are some of the funny answers:
He gets all hot and bothered. He becomes a waiter. He either develops moral hydrophobia or sends out an S. O. S. for the Doc Brady. He tries another kind. Dandruff or corns.
Then here are some of the cryptic answers:
The man's last state is worse than the first. Gosh, I wonder. It depends on what he thinks. He will never need another pill.
Finally, some of the correct answers:
He will likely get over the constipation habit. He may have a short spell of constiveness but the peristalsis soon becomes regular if he sticks it. If he doesn't worry about it his bowels will function naturally after a few days, with no ill effects from the delay. In a week at most bowels will act normally, and no harm is done meanwhile. He will probably forget about his habit and nature will resume control. He will have an excellent chance of surviving. All monetary canal will regulate itself. He may get over the habit if he tries sincerely. The bowels will act naturally for once. He will probably take to his bed with the conviction that his friends have all cruelly abandoned him and he is going to die from auto-intoxication.
The best answer to the question, in my judgment, is this:
Question: What is likely to happen if a confirmed pill taker is unable to get his regular physic?
Answer: The poor sap is likely to break his back.

POPULATION LIMIT SET AT 8 BILLION

Berlin—(AP)—The time when human beings may be pushing each other off this planet for lack of elbow room is receding.
Only two years ago, it was estimated that by 2100 the total population, growing at its current rate, would advance from its present 1,800,000,000 to 6,000,000,000, about the limit for which food could be produced.

But Prof. Albrecht Penck, Germany's leading geographer, in a communication to the Prussian Academy of Sciences now gives an increased capacity.
He places the maximum population at 8,000,000,000, an average density of 140 per square mile, or allowing for desert regions, a practical density of 257, which corresponds to a little more than the present population density of New York state—217.

Europe is in a bad way, according to Prof. Penck. With its 3,750,000 square miles, he says it can support only 350,000,000 and it already has 450,000,000. South America, with 6,500,000 square miles, could comfortably accommodate the whole present population of the earth. In fact, he looks for tremendous development there and predicts that Brazil is destined to become one of the most powerful nations.

Before the limit is reached, he foresees deserts and other waste places turned into productive areas, because there will be sufficient man power to do so.

CYCLISTS' WEDDING UNIQUE

Recalling the old song of "Daisy Bell," crowds at Cardiff, Wales, recently witnessed a wedding at which the bride and groom arrived at the church separately on single bicycles, as husband and wife rode away on a tandem for their honeymoon. All the guests peddled to the church in cycling costumes. The bride and groom wore dark cycling breeches, while some of the guests were in shorts with bare knees. As the bridal couple left the church they passed under an archway formed of bicycle wheels. The bride wore a "Miss M. Jones" and the groom, Frederick Jones. Both are prominent in cycling clubs.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT ILLUMER
Washington—Senatorial colleagues of Dave Reed of Pennsylvania, in taking stock of his ability to represent this country in the forthcoming naval disarmament conference, probably secretly hope that the senator will keep a close check on his some times unruly tongue.
Reed's impatience has caused him grief on several occasions in the senate. Acknowledged one of the leaders of that body, nevertheless his epigrammatic lunges made during periods of irritation have brought him merciless panning at the hands of his colleagues.
His attack on the press, in which he referred to "the scallied ethics of a so-called profession," during the recent flareup on secrecy surrounding executive sessions of the senate, will not soon be forgotten. And there are other similar instances.

But perhaps the most striking example of how Reed's tongue got him in hot water occurred just the other day. The instance is referred to now as the $5.50 debate.

ACID DEBATE
Senators had talked loud and long on an amendment to the tariff bill to reduce the rate on tannic acid 3 cents. There are only 275 pounds of the acid imported on a quota of one million a year and it is used for medicinal purposes.

Democrats were insistent that the reduction be made. Republicans were adamant in their stand that the rate as fixed in committee should prevail.

After considerable wrangling a standing vote was ordered. Pat Harrison insisted on a roll call. The debate in first having a question roll and then a roll call was too much for Reed. Impatiently he jumped to his feet.

Either way only $5.50 in revenue was involved, he said. What a farce! Hundreds of dollars worth of time being spent at the expense of the United States on a question of $5.50. And yet Democrats insist that there was no filibuster being conducted—it was the signal for attack. The Pennsylvanian had laid himself wide open.

Young Bob La Follette was the first to thrust. He wanted to know why, if Reed was so anxious to save time, the proposed reduction was not accepted in the first place. And when Reed replied "for the very good reason we think the rate is a reasonable one," Borah jumped to his feet, and shaking his finger reminded Reed that "we are just as well justified in insisting upon our position."

They were out for the Pennsylvanian, and gloves were thrown in the discard.
Barley of Kentucky caustically reminded that it was not the $5.50, but the principle involved, and that he hoped the time would never come when in order to save money by reducing the pages in the congressional record senators would remain silent.

A situation of this kind is made to order for Pat Harrison. Never does he hit harder, get more sarcastic or lunge deeper than on such occasions. Rising to his feet he faced Reed:

"I do not blame the senator for becoming irritated and impatient, for lecturing those of us who are less significant and less important, but more humble than he. But he, too, wears our patience and ruffles our sensibilities..."

Referring to Reed's appointment on the disarmament delegation, Harrison said with withering sarcasm: "It has gone to his head. There's the whole trouble."

Norris and Blaine chimed in with facetious remarks aimed to add to the Pennsylvanian's discomforts.

Hollywood, in all its history, has had but one such institution—an unpretentious place half a block from the boulevard itself, but keeping a respectful distance.

The manager believes in keeping the nature of his clientele in confidence, but it is doubtful if many of the unredempted pledges displayed for sale were left in stock by movie folk, who as a rule, even in distress, prefer to hide to the polychrome dens of

MARGIN TRADERS MUST USE CARE, EXPERT REMINDS

Don't Take Larger Risk if You Cannot Afford It

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES

New York—To understand the perils of margin trading in stocks, perils which were brought home to a vast number in the great collapse of the market last month, it is necessary to have some idea of the machinery.

Suppose a trader believing a stock selling at $100 a share is due to advance in price and wishing to profit thereby opens a margin account with a broker. He puts up in cash or in securities $2,500. Now he can buy fifty shares of that stock and have a 50 per cent margin or he can buy one hundred shares and have a 25 per cent margin. Let us say he assumes the larger risk, providing his broker will allow it. The purchase of one hundred shares at $100 a share costs $10,000. Of this amount the trader provides $2,500 and the balance of $7,500 is borrowed from the banks through the broker.

Now as long as the price of the stock stays at 100 the trader has a $2,500 equity and a $7,500 debt balance. If the stock advances to 110 the equity of the trader increases to $3,500 and the debt balance remains the same. He still owes to his broker $7,500 but the latter is not worried about the debt because the market price of the stock takes care of that. If, on the other hand, the stock drops to 90 the equity of the trader decreases to $1,500 but the debt balance still remains unchanged at $7,500.

Now the trader is in difficulty because 15 points more of decline would wipe him out. Long before that point was reached his broker would demand additional margin. If the trader could supply it well and good. If he could not supply it the broker would sell him out or he could sell voluntarily but in any case he would sustain a loss, the exact amount depending on the price at which the stock was sold.

Observe that the danger would not have been nearly as great if the trader had only bought twenty-five shares instead of fifty shares. He could have weathered a storm just twice as well. As a matter of fact in the highly inflated market such as that existing in stocks during the greater part of 1929 no conservative broker would have allowed a trading on a twenty-five per cent margin.

MORE STEEL SHIPS ARE BEING BUILT IN U. S.

BY RUBY BLACK
(Washington Bureau of Post-Crescent)

Washington—American shipyards recorded an increase in the number of steel vessels, but a decrease in wood vessels which they were building or under contract to build for private shipowners on Oct. 1 as compared with Sept. 1, according to the bureau of Navigation, Department of Commerce.

On Oct. 1 the shipyards were building or under contract to build 184 steel vessels of 27,070 gross tons compared with 1775 steel vessels of 195,315 gross tons on Sept. 1; and 37 wood vessels of 16,550 gross tons on Oct. 1, as compared with 43 wood vessels of 13,459 gross tons on Sept. 1.

The only new contract entered into by this corporation during September was the construction of a steel tanker of 4500 gross tons for the Standard Oil company for use in its Great Lakes traffic.

DAVENPORT LADY ADDS HER PRAISE TO NEW KONJOLA

Modern Medicine Banishes Stubborn Case of Stomach Trouble

MRS. MARY VESCIO
"I had been the victim of a weak and disordered stomach," said Mrs. Mary Vescio, 514 West Second street, Davenport, Iowa. "Food refused to digest as it should, and I dreaded meal time, for I was sure to suffer afterward. At times the indigestion pains were almost unbearable. I was also subject to severe headaches."

"But thanks to Konjola I am feeling fine again. My stomach troubles have the least bit of trouble. I have an excellent appetite and eat what I want without fear of suffering afterward. My food digests as it should and nourishes me. I am never bothered by headaches. I am very grateful for all that Konjola has done for me, and am glad to recommend it to all who suffer."

Konjola is sold in Appleton, at Olinz Bros., Drug Store, and is all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"I want a new bank book; I haven't been able to save a thing with this one."

Hauling a sled over 20 to 40 miles out of the ordinary to an Eskimo of snow and ice a day is nothing; dog.

Desperate Woman Stays by Child

Denver, Colo.—Although desperately ill herself, unable to eat and living on her nerve, Mrs. Tom S. Layson, 1839 Lincoln Street, stubbornly refused to leave the bedside of her sick baby son. Instead, without relinquishing her vigil in the child's sick room, she took steps to restore her own shattered health. So successful was she, simply through a small change in her diet, that by the time the child was well, she, too, had fully recovered. She tells the story as follows:

"Day and night beside a tired, sick little baby I sat, although I was desperately sick, also. But when I left the room my small son cried. I was draining my vitality; living on my nerve. The baby was so horribly ill, I could not have eaten had my life depended upon it."

Physician brings help
"Our physician, a life-long friend, noting the deep circles under my eyes and realizing my inability to eat, brought me a can of Postum and commanded me to drink it. I had used caffeine beverages all my life; had lived on them during Junior's illness, but there were times when I was so ill I could not hold my head up. In desperation I tried Postum."

"In a single week, confined to that room under the most terrible nerve strain imaginable, I recovered my poise and regained my sense of fitness. Gradually my appetite returned and, at the end of another week, my weight had increased by a pound. I kept on with Postum and by the time Sonny was a convalescent, my husband and I were confirmed users."

"My nerves are no longer 'jangle'; my hand no longer shakes; my complexion has cleared up. Before, I had indigestion after each meal, and chronic headaches. Now I have neither. And the funniest thing, although I have always been underweight, in the last month I have gained three pounds."

The severest test
Probably no drink has ever been called upon to "make good" under such severe conditions as Mrs. Layson describes above. Yet Mrs. Layson tells how her nerves quieted down, her indigestion disappeared, her weight in-

HOPE FOR UNIFORM AUTO REGISTRATION

Sixteen Different Ways Are Now Used by Various States, Survey Shows

Washington, D. C.—Automobile registration in the United States is performed in 16 different ways. When state legislatures meet soon it is hoped that a uniform will be taken to standardize this registration and licensing so that the rate will be uniform.

In 14 states, horsepower is the method for determining registration fees. Net weight is the method in the states. Net weight and horsepower in five, gross weight and horsepower in three. Gross weight in five. Net weight plus times registered in one. Net weight plus flat rate in one. Gross weight plus flat rate in one. Net weight and value in one. Net weight, horsepower, plus factory price in one. Net weight, horsepower, factory price, plus times registered in one. Manufacturer's list price in one. Cost price in one. Flat rates in three. Cubic inch displacement in one. Value based upon 10 per cent depreciation each year, up to eight years, in one.

An example of the varying taxes levied for registration is seen between the District of Columbia and Maryland. In the former the registration fee is a flat rate of one dollar. In the latter the fee is based upon horsepower, and the fee last year averaged $10.00 a car, or more than ten times the fee of the District of Columbia.

Another example of discrimination may be found in Minnesota between motorists of the same state. The registration fee is based on value each year, the law allowing 20 per cent depreciation up to and including the eighth year. The owner of a new car pays 2.4 per cent registration fee on its value, while the owner of an old car of the same make and original value, would be allowed to register his at less cost.

Costume in Coat Styling

An outstandingly smart costume is illustrated in coat styling in feather-weight tweed in rust brown tones. The bodice presents a tailored fit and appearance and shows smart raised waistline in narrow suede belt. The pointed insets of bodice that are cut on the bias for contrasting trimming effect, add fascinating length to the silhouette. The lower collar terminates at left side waistline to give further length to figure.

The skirt is perfectly slim and straight at back with all the fullness at front provided by circular godets that just flutter when wearer moves.

Style No. 2977 is designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 35, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

It's an excellent choice for street without a top coat, Swagger to wear to the football games, and ever so smart for all sports occasions.

Plain light weight, woolen, cashmere, jersey, canton crepe, crepe de chine, silk printed tweed, orange Moroccan and sheer velvet appropriate.

It is very easily made. Simply a two-piece bodice to be seamed at sides and shoulders. The fronts are underlaid and rolled into revers with the attached straight collar. The skirt is seamed at sides. The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"WELL, if you want chocolate ginger bread for lunch every day you ought to have a kite, somebody ought to tie a string to it and let you hold the end," she answered merrily, but there was a thread of seriousness in her voice. "I have a problem for you to solve." She curled up on one end of the swing, and crossed her hands over her knees.

"Should I tell Ted that Geraldine is about as fat as a sailor who has every port or let him find it out?"

"People will find out things they are supposed to if we wait long enough," he answered easily. "Hands off is the best policy."

"But Ted has saved all his money for furniture and he's been looking at apartments and now she says she won't marry him if somebody else comes along soon." She shrugged her shoulders. "He'll come along but it will be too late."

"If there were anything that I could do short of marrying the lady myself, I'd do it," he offered, but his voice was amused.

"No, it would be a shame for any other member of the family to suffer. You know you are almost a member."

He did not answer but set quietly smoking his pipe. "What would you do if you won $5000, Sue?"

"I'm not going to build air castles on a street where I can't live," she answered. "I don't like the sound of breaking glass and you know I couldn't win a dime with a hole in it. But tell me what you would do."

"That depends on several things," he answered. "I think I would keep it in case I had a chance to do what I wanted to with it some time. I'm far from winning, though."

Abruptly Sue swung back to the subject of Geraldine.

"Oh, how dumb we are. School is out and yet Ted believed she was staying home to grade papers. I believe she almost wants him to find out. Or else she's dangling him to see how far he'll go. I'm going to tell him, and if he likes her better for her faults, all right."

When Jimmy left, Sue watched him with a frustrated feeling. He hadn't been able to advise her about Ted; and he hadn't confided his plans in her, nor accepted her help. But he had been strangely quiet. She wondered if she had hurt him or if he had decided that she wasn't going to play a leading part in his life and, therefore, wouldn't have her take even a minor role. Had Grace—she dismissed the thought as unworthy. Grace would not try her luck with Jimmy unless she was sure that Sue was entirely out of the game, and she wasn't sure at all.

Cornie came home pretty soon, surprised to find Jimmy gone.

"He didn't intend to stay long when he promised to come—but he stayed longer than he had intended to at that," she puzzled.

"Jimmy making you wonder?" Cornie asked. "Good for him. It's not 10 o'clock yet. Let's stroll to the corner drug store and celebrate my victory on the bet, with something whipped cream and chocolate."

"You mean Harry is taking you?" Sue asked.

"He's delighted—even if he does know it's because I'm your youthful sister. I'll tell you about it as we eat. Come on."

There was a light in the living room as they passed the Metcalf house and Sue gave a little gasp. Standing near the table, she saw

He didn't wait so very long. Then on his knees he crawled along, and pounced upon the Times as he gave a chance to stand. He grabbed up two in each hand. Wee Seouty looked real scared and said, "What it it's all about?"

"We'll find out what the big man does to the Times, in the next story."

Said Seouty, "Well, I guess that I have had enough. I will not try to eat another bite. I'm sure 'twould make my tummy ache. The rest of you had better quit and rest while you are feeling fit. If I can find a

HIGHWAY PROGRAM, SANATORIUM ACTION FACE SUPERVISORS

Board to Act on Proposal to Operate Institution Separately

Neenah—The November session of the Winnebago board of supervisors opened Tuesday morning at the court house at Oshkosh. The principal subjects for discussion will be the approval of budgets and the approval of the highway program and the Sanatorium improvement program. The highway program, recommended by the highway commission, proposes paying highway 21 west of Omro and improving county trunk G with some hard surface through Appleton.

The highway 21 project is generally favored but it is expected there will be some argument concerning the trunk G improvement. It is known that the highway commission will recommend that $153,000 be appropriated for work on the trunk G improvement which is enough to complete the road if that kind of surfacing is wanted. Some members, it is understood, would hold off this work another year.

The Sanatorium improvement program also is expected to cause considerable debate. The board will decide whether to continue to operate the institution as a part of the Fond du Lac county or to separate it from the county and operate it as a separate institution. The Fond du Lac board has decided to separate the institution from the county and operate it as a separate institution. The improvement program of two years, with $25,000 to be raised in 1930 and 1931 by each of the county boards.

Dissolution of joint ownership at the present time will mean that the Fond du Lac patients will be withdrawn and there will not be the need for additional quarters, except to provide for additional units for children.

The 1930 tentative budget allows for $300,000 to become the initial installment on a courthouse building fund. The supervisors are fairly well agreed on the need of a new courthouse, but are not like minded on the site. Even that discussion may be shut off for four years, providing a resolution, which is submitted to be presented at the next session. It is understood, will recommend that the final selection and purchase of a site be left until November, 1934.

BARNES SUPPORTS SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Endorses Move Sponsored in Menasha by Kiwanis Club

Menasha—George D. Barnes, secretary of the Gilbey Paper company, a strong supporter of the safety campaign sponsored by the Kiwanis club, advises citizens generally to heed the signs which are being placed on the highway. He says: "May I be permitted to comment on the safety program that is being sponsored by the Menasha Kiwanis. I have noted some of the comments that have been advanced and I too feel that I would like to express my approval."

"I consider the annual safety program that is being put on as one of the finest local activities that could be sponsored. Because of the constantly increasing hazards both in industries and on the highway it is necessary that each citizen be thoroughly schooled in safety prevention. This is a thoroughly impressive upon us as we are to lose sight of the seriousness of the situation, and this constant revival of the subject, through this annual safety program by Menasha Kiwanis is serving as a very necessary stimulant."

"Possibly few of us have been in a position to get the statistics that are being put out annually by the Wisconsin Industrial commission. The last authentic statement available that gives the number of death accidents per 100,000 people shows that in 1924 in the United States there were 75-210 accidents as compared to 244 accidents per 100,000 people in England. This wide difference certainly should make all of us in America think very seriously and work in every way to decrease that position to direct us in this work while movement."

"Because of its decided worth to us all I would like to urge that every citizen of Menasha boost the Kiwanis program in every way and stimulate popular interest in it."

Adults, Too, Prefer "No Dosing" for Colds

Millions Adopt External Remedy Made Famous As Treatment for Children's Colds

A generation ago, when Vicks Vapo Rub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Mothers of young children especially have been quick to appreciate the value of this external method of treatment. Because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset the little ones' delicate stomachs. Year by year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds.

Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster; and, at the same time, it releases medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages.

Increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vicks slogan, "Made famous when Vicks reached 17 Million Jars Used Yearly—later raised to 21 Million"—there are now over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly.

DROP ACTION AGAINST RESTAURANT OWNER

Madison—(AP)—The industrial commission has authorized the attorney general to dismiss criminal action against August Gans, Milwaukee, restaurant owner for failure to carry out workmen's compensation insurance, following his decision to pay damages to one of his women employees who was seriously gassed and disabled for nine months.

Gans, first, refused to pay compensation and transferred his real estate to relatives. Such failure carries a penalty of six months imprisonment. Gans was arrested and remained in jail for several weeks pending trial. At his trial he offered to pay the amount due the injured employee. In view of the fact he had already been in prison and had met his obligations, the commission consented to dismissal of the action.

This is the third criminal action which the commission has commenced recently against employees who failed to carry workmen's compensation insurance.

In addition to criminal action the employer places himself to a forfeiture of $106 a day. Civil actions for collections of this forfeiture have also been commenced by the industrial commission.

The industrial commission feels that as the compensation act has been in effect eighteen years all employers should know of its existence and the necessity of carrying workmen's compensation insurance. "And failure usually means willful violation of the law."

DOUBT NOW HOVERS ABOUT STOCKS OF NEW "EQUITIES"

Well Established Companies Hope to Check Concern Over Their Issues

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1929, By Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—Financial Review and Outlook.

There is now a sharp deviation in the mind of the average investor between the stocks at current prices of companies that have been conservative in their particular fields of industry in the production of power and light or in transportation, and those that have taken advantage of the recent public enthusiasm for "equities" to exploit themselves and over-capitalized the element of good will.

In the former group the degree of price depreciation has been nearly as great as in the latter because it was in them that competitive buying centered in the last few months of the bull market.

WEAK ACCOUNTS LIQUIDATED

Many of the weak accounts that have now been liquidated or are still in the process of adjustment, were filled up with shares of this character. Their action at present, therefore, represents the effect of technical market conditions rather than that of excessive price or the fear that they may overpay and pay less as business is accommodated to the period of reduced public purchasing power.

In this group are many solid stocks of the standard industries whose prices have shrunk since the middle of September as much as 40 to 60 per cent. At the same time there is nothing visible in their action to suggest that they will be compelled to reduce their dividends. It is more likely that some may pay even larger amounts to their shareholders in a frank effort to check the concern of the public and to strengthen their investment status.

MAKE ADJUSTMENTS

Admitting that they had over-estimated the possibilities of earnings in the next year or two, it is equally certain that they have also made a reasonable adjustment to any trade recession in the amount of decline in market value that has now occurred in their securities.

In the second group are the stocks of many new corporations that were

UNITED STATES, CANADA MAY JOIN, TO CONTROL WHEAT

Growers Will Oppose Efforts of European Wheat Buyers Trust

BY J. C. ROYLE

Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
New York—Organization of European wheat trusts is under way to combat the orderly marketing programs of the federal farm board through the wheat corporations and of the Canadian growers through the Canadian wheat pools. This is the report that has just reached private and government agencies in this country.

The fear that together the American and Canadian farm organizations, by holding their wheat for orderly marketing with the aid of organizations such as the farm board, may advance wheat prices and effect European buyers' profits, is alleged to be behind the move.

REPORT IS DENIED

It is reported, but unconfirmed and vigorously denied by the French embassy at Washington, that the active development of the buyers' trust follows a hint to French organized mill buyers from Premier Andre Tardieu. This report is traceable, it is believed, to a recent statement by the French premier that Europe, exclusive of Russia, could have the billion dollars a year that it now pays out for wheat by reorganization of home production of wheat, making wheat growing in Europe more remunerative.

The harvest of Argentina and Australia will begin in about two months. If the European wheat trust can stall off buying American and Canadian wheat for the time necessary for the southern hemisphere crop to reach them without an advance in prices, they will have an advantage. But news of the Argentine crop prospect has been unfavorable. The department of agriculture estimates that the wheat supply, together with a big carry-over from the bumper year of 1928-1929, will be three hundred and sixty million bushels less in the 1929-1930 season than for the previous year. Assuming that consumption will be about that of last year, that is three million seven hundred and sixty million bushels, the carryover will be reduced to two hundred million bushels or the lowest amount since 1923.

Based on these figures the outlook for the American and Canadian farmers to defeat the European buyers trust seems bright, provided they can market their wheat in an orderly manner and not dump it in panic. The trust may be able to supply its immediate demands until the Argentine crop is available but the long term outlook is bright for the American and Canadian growers. Any drop in production from the present estimates in Argentina or Australia, or even a likelihood that spring wheat in North America would not do well, might cause an expansion of prices.

CANADIAN LIKES PLAN

George McIvor, general manager of the Canadian wheat pool, indicated plainly his attitude of cooperation with the farm board when he said, "the vending into one organization of the wheat pool cooperative sales agencies in the United States, to be adequately financed by the United States government under the supervision of the federal farm board, should, if it can be carried out, have a powerful influence in stabilizing prices not only in the United States but in the markets of the world."

Senator Brookhart of Iowa states that Canada and the United States together controlled sixty per cent of the world's wheat and there was no reason why a system of orderly marketing might not be worked out between them. He added that representatives of the Canadian wheat pool had already conferred with the senate committee on agriculture and forestry and that the aims of the Canadian organization as outlined were identical with those of the federal farm board.

Samuel R. McKelvie, grain member of the farm board, while not sponsoring a Canadian alliance, declared that a steady influence for marketing was needed and would be furnished. He added that the consumers of Europe need be in no fear at the operation of the farm board would mean increased bread prices to European consumers.

The policy of the board, he said, was not one of price fixing but of stabilization of prices on a level which would give a fair return by introducing steady influences to maintain an even flow of grain to market. Such a plan, carried out to its logical conclusion, he believed, would reverse the position of the American farmers in the European markets.

The organized purchasers, Mr. McKelvie stated, would be forced by organized farmers. The market, he added, would not be upset by a mad race of the grower who had to dispose of his wheat in a hurry to get cash. The plan would be brought about by means of loans to the co-operators. The plan was not so much to give the farmer an advance as to give the farmer a definite return through the orderly marketing methods and of order credit.

LONG WINTER TRAINING FLIGHT FOR AIR CORPS

Washington —(AP)—An extended winter training flight for the First Pursuit group of the Army Air Corps stationed at Selfridge field, Mich., was authorized today by Secretary Good.

Colonel Charles H. Danforth, commander of the post, was directed to send 15 pursuit planes equipped with skis, accompanied by one transport plane, to Spokane, Wash., and return, over a route to be selected by an officer who will be sent out in advance for the purpose.

The flight will begin at the discretion of Colonel Danforth, and will end not later than Feb. 1. It is expected to furnish valuable information concerning the difficulties of operating a large number of planes away from a permanent base in sub-zero weather.

CANADIAN MINISTER OF FINANCE DIES

James A. Robb Victim of Apoplexy While Recovering from Pneumonia

Toronto —(AP)—James Alexander Robb, Canadian minister of finance, died of a stroke of apoplexy yesterday shortly after he had been pronounced out of danger from an attack of pneumonia. He was 70 years old.

The body was sent to Valleyfield, Que., where his political career began 23 years ago, and where he will be buried tomorrow.

Mr. Robb was stricken with pneumonia when he came here from Ottawa three weeks ago to deliver a speech.

He was born on a farm near Huntingdon, Que. When a young man he went to Valleyfield to work in his uncle's mill. After the death of his uncle he entered partnership with his aunt in the mill under the name of McDonald and Robb.

In 1896 he became mayor of the town. Two years later he was selected by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Liberal leader, to stand for parliament from the district of Huntingdon. His first victory was by 69 votes. He was re-elected in the next six general elections by majorities ranging to 1,800 votes.

After ten years in parliament he became chief opposition whip for the Liberal party and in 1921 when his party formed a government was appointed minister of trade and commerce by Premier Mackenzie King. During a long period of illness of W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, Mr. Robb performed the duties of that office. When Mr. Fielding retired in 1925 Mr. Robb succeeded to his place.

Menominee Wallops Marinette In Annual Grid Classic

CRIPPLED BADGERS NO MATCH FOR THEIR MICHIGAN NEIGHBORS

Jim Masker Is Referee and Maj. John L. Griffith, Umpire

MENOMINEE, MICH.— (P)— Their point-to-point record unblemished, the Marquette Menominee high school football team today looked for bigger things to conquer after a decisive 49-0 victory over Marinette. Ten thousand rabid fans saw the Armistice day game yesterday when the two state-line teams met for the thirty-fifth time.

The 48 points in 48 minutes of play with the crippled Wisconsin team brought the Maroons' season total to 405 points in 334 minutes of play.

Big Ten leaders officiated in the classic game yesterday as the two towns renewed their constant enmity. Of Wisconsin-Michigan rivalry, the 10,000 fans were many from all sections of the country, back for the annual encounter which attracts attention throughout the Midwest.

Outstanding in the game was Francis Talbert, flashy maroon back, who made four of Menominee's seven touchdowns and helped materially with the others. He carried the ball a total of 280 yards. Kreuz, of the famous football family which gave Wisconsin U two stars and Penn one, kicked seven successive points. For Marinette, Sorenson did what he could but support was lacking as the team, crippled by suspension of three stars, nevertheless fought gamely. A barrage of Menominee passes and clever running had the Wisconsin team down.

Major John L. Griffith, head of the Big Ten, was umpire. Jimmy Masker, also of the Big Ten was referee.

The first score was Whitten's. He went through right tackle for eight yards after four successive Menominee first downs in the opening period. Nyberg passed to Talbert 20 yards for the second mark near the close of the quarter.

After three maroon first downs in the second quarter, Nyberg passed to Stewart from the 10-yard line for the third touchdown. On an exchange of punts after the kickoff, Nyberg finally kicked one outside on the purple third yard line. Collins kicked out 36 yards to Talbert, who went through the entire Marinette field in 53 yard runs for a touchdown. Just a few minutes later, on sweet 39-yard pass from Nyberg to Peters resulted in another score as the latter ran 43 yards to the goal.

The third period gave sleek Menominee fans another thrill. Talbert got a high pass from Nyberg at quarter. He went through left tackle with four men hanging on him and sped 43 yards for the points with the entire purple team far outdistanced in the sprint. He likewise went over with the last score of the day on a straight 3 yard plunge through the line in the last quarter.

The statistics convincingly show Menominee's superiority. The Maroons made 22 downs to Marinette's 11.

Wahoo!! Haskell Midgets Are "All-Americans"

For two seasons these Haskell Indian midgets should qualify as "All-Americans." In the first place, they're Americans, each member of the team being a full-blooded Indian. For another reason, they've won more than 100 games in the past two seasons. The midgets have performed before some of the largest crowds of any kid team in the country—their games are staged between halves of the Haskell home games. They also have the distinction of playing most of their contests at night under powerful floodlights.

GOPHERS, WOLVES WILL BATTLE FOR "LITTLE BROWN JUG"

Illinois and Chicago to Meet in Another Conference Feature

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO.—(P)—Two of the oldest rival football cities in the Western conference football—Michigan and Minnesota, and Chicago and Illinois—will be renewed Saturday.

Michigan will go to Minneapolis to try to take the "little brown jug" away from Minnesota, where it has rested in a trophy case since 1927. They did not meet last season, and the 1927 victory was Minnesota's first since 1919. Comparing their records, Michigan does not appear to have much chance of taking the trophy back to Ann Arbor, but Minnesota, in losing to Iowa last Saturday, took a physical beating and may be unable to recover in time to stop the improving Wolverines.

Chicago and Illinois will not be fighting for a trophy, and none is needed to bring out the best in both teams. Neither team is having a capable of springing surprises and a close battle is indicated.

Coach Jimmy Phelan of Purdue has wasted no time in getting under way with his preparation for the invasion of Iowa Saturday—the game that probably will make or break the Purdue season. Phelan did not use Welch or Harneson, his star left carries, Saturday against Mississippi, but yesterday both along with White, Yurkovich, and the Huskies line were given through a sharp scrimmage against the reserves.

Iowa was given an afternoon off to permit the squad to recover from bumps received in the Minnesota contest. Coach Ingwersen found a long list of injuries awaiting him.

Indiana, which has an open last Saturday, is in the midst of whirling up for the invasion of Northwestern on this weekend. The Hoosiers are in good physical condition and will be at their best against the Wildcats.

Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern gave his regulars a rest yesterday, after cautioning them against picking Indiana for a soft opponent. Northwestern is looking for Iowa to trip Purdue Saturday, which, with a Northwestern triumph over Indiana, would give the Wildcats a strong claim to the conference title.

A minimum of activity is on the Wisconsin and Ohio States programs for the week. The Badgers will have an open case Saturday, and Ohio State, with Illinois to be met a week from Saturday, plans little work in preparation for Kempton Saturday's opponent.

BIG SIX TEAMS MAY PLAY TO RECORD CROWD
Lawrence, Kas.—(P)—A record attendance record for the Big Six football game was predicted as Kansas came here today to the expected 35,000 fans from the central section. Officials said the game will be a record 35,000. Nearly 35,000 can accommodate.

Major Leagues All Have Training Camps Picked

BY JOHN B. FOSTER Copyright, 1929

NEW YORK.—Only one major league club has not announced definitely where it will train next spring—the Boston Americans. They did say they would not go back to Bradenton, Fla. The St. Louis Cardinals, upon being assured of that, promptly moved back from Avon Lake to Bradenton that they might get closer to other major league clubs in Florida. St. Louis once was a Bradenton asset.

This arranges the Florida camps. The New York Americans and the Boston Nationals are fixtures at St. Petersburg. The Detroit team has ventured into Tampa, which is quite new to the players, but very old to Manager Lucky Harris, who went there with Washington. Brooklyn has threatened to desert Clearwater for Miami. The latter is more of a trying place than Clearwater and the Brooklyn players are huge and sturdy and need copious amounts of sunshine for baseball is not as keen at Clearwater as it is at Miami. Golf, grapefruit and midname are more popular topics at Clearwater.

The Phillies return to Winter Haven and with Cincinnati, which is expected to go back to Orlando, hold the center of Florida without opposition. Last spring it was announced that the St. Louis Browns would train at West Palm beach. Phil Dill may change his mind with a new manager and take them elsewhere.

The Browns like the southern air. West Palm Beach they would be not far away from the Athletics, who are farthest south on the gulf side of Florida at Fort Myers. Florida takes much interest in what the big teams do because the state is eager to hold its reputation as a training center.

Biloxi, Miss., has weaned Washington away from Florida. Clark Griffith has been persuaded to try it. Biloxi is a much different place from the little old fashioned resort of years ago. The Toledo club of the American association has been training there and liked it, according to reports.

Cleveland is close to Biloxi at New Orleans. Conditions, as far as climate is concerned, are almost similar. Biloxi has a good ball ground and is on the main highway between Texas and the north. Perhaps after Washington has remained a bit at Biloxi it will go north by way of Chattanooga and stop off in Tennessee for a few days. Spring rain is the only drawback in Tennessee.

The Cubs and Pittsburgh remain in California as usual. The St. Louis Nationals might have gone there and they been able to get all the vases. The Giants and White Sox are at San Antonio and if they go to Mexico City, which seems very probable will have the most adventurous trip of all.

GOLF ASSOCIATION GIVES SWEETSER OFFICE
New York.—(P)—The Metropolitan Golf association has followed an example set by the national body in nominating Jess Sweetser, former United States and British amateur champion, for vice president of the association. The United States Golf association gave the active golfers representation among its officers by electing Bobby Jones and Harrison R. Johnston to office. Nomination is equivalent to election.

LAST WEEK'S RESULTS
Oshkosh 6, Appleton 3.
Fond du Lac 27, Sheboygan 0.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
Manitowish at Sheboygan.
East Green Bay at Marinette.
Fond du Lac at West Green Bay.

Having no game scheduled over the weekend the East Green Bay high school gridgers sat back and ease and watched with no little amount of interest the outcome of the two conference games that were played while they enjoyed their day of grace.

Much of their interest was centered on the outcome of the Oshkosh-Appleton clash. Due to the fact that these two aggregations were fighting it out to determine which would be the runnerup for this year's title, Oshkosh in winning, was forced to play what was the hardest fought grid contest ever seen here. Their lone touchdown coming off a blocked kick, was the determining factor of the game. The two teams were so evenly matched that practically the entire game was played in midfield and had it not been for the lucky break that came to the Sawdusters on the first play of the second period, the game would no doubt have ended in a scoreless tie.

Now that Oshkosh and Appleton have finished their season's record, several of the other teams in the conference will wrap up their season this week. Last and West Green Bay will be the only teams to have a game to play after this week and that will be played Thanksgiving day, when the two meet in the annual city championship clash. The Sheboygan-Manitowish battle is expected to be the best on the entire card for this week. Due to the fact that besides being bitter rivals these two aggregations are so close in the race for conference honors that a win for either team will give it the title of the champion and put the Shipbuilders down in their place.

BERGHERM AVERAGES 3 YARDS ON EACH TRY
Chicago.—(P)—Rus Bergherm, Northwestern fullback, is one of the hardest worked backs in the Big Ten, and Coach Dick Hanley would have a tough time getting along without him.

Bergherm, after injuries took Henry Bruder from the team for the rest of the season, assumed the running, passing and a good share of the running duties in the Northwestern backfield. He took the job on short notice, for Bruder was the first choice to do the punting and passing. In 125 trips with the ball, Bergherm has gained 384 yards, an average of 3.1 yards. Against Ohio State Saturday, he earned the ball 33 times for an average of four yards a try, and against Illinois he was used 42 times and averaged nearly five yards.

HASKELL INDIANS IN THEIR LAST HOME GAME
Kansas City.—(P)—Captained by Louis Wilson, the Haskell Indian team today will play their last home game in the 1929 season. The Haskell Indians will meet the Kansas City team, who are here Saturday in their last game in home territory before going east to battle Duquesne at St. Xavier.

SELLOUT EXPECTED FOR PURDUE-HAWK GAME
LaFayette, Ind.—(P)—A sellout is expected for the game between the two teams that will be played Saturday in the one game to decide the championship between the two teams. The test of the season will be the game between the two teams, which will be played Saturday. The game will be a sellout, and the teams will be expected to play well.

Kid Chocolate Seeks Chance At Feather Title

BY JOHN J. ROMANO Copyright, 1929

NEW YORK.—Luis Gutierrez, manager of Kid Chocolate is determined to win a world's title for his charge. Luis comes forward with a challenge to Battalino, world's featherweight champion, but the size of the offer does not appeal to the managers of the Hartford wallop.

Fifty thousand dollars is the figure Battalino sets on his services and this has been refused. But it will not be surprising if the good senior digs down into his jeans and meets these terms. The Kid has been a big money-maker in this country and recently went home to his beloved Cuba with over $100,000 safely stored away.

When Andre Rouss held the title, the Frenchman was offered thirty thousand dollars to make the trip to Havana and be relieved of his title. Nothing came of this and Battalino was the lucky boy who got Rouss in a ring.

There are those who will censure the Hartford lad for placing such a high figure on his services. When it is recalled that Battalino got little for nothing for a hard fifteen round battle with the former world's champion and came out of the fight with two broken molars, the figure is not too high. High priced specialists have worked on the battler's hands and so far the Hartford lad is really in debt because of his sacrifice to get a crack at the world's title.

Battalino's hands are in bad shape and he will not be ready for action until next month. It is more than likely that fifty thousand dollars was asked just to put a question to the talk of a battle with Chocolate at the present time. Battalino is entitled to a few warm-up battles before he could honestly be expected to meet a boy of Chocolate's caliber. The high figure placed on his services will quiet all talk until the open air season rolls around and the young world's champion will be fit to make a good fight in defense of his crown.

One thing is certain, however, Gutierrez will leave no stone unturned until he gets Chocolate in the ring with a world's champion.

ONE INTERSECTIONAL GAME SCHEDULED FOR EASTERN GRID TEAMS
New York University's clash with Missouri of the Big Six heads the intersectional slate on the Atlantic seaboard but there will be more interest in such games as those involving Yale and Princeton; Cornell and Dartmouth; Penn and Columbia. Colgate and Syracuse; Williams and Amherst; and Tufts and Bowdoin. All of them rivalries of thirty years or more.

Yale, with little Albie Booth for a sparkplug, will be a decided favorite over a Princeton Tiger able to win only two games this year, both of them over minor opposition. In this rivalry going back to 1873, Yale has won 27 games; Princeton 15, with nine ties.

Penn's twentieth meeting with Columbia looks like another triumph for the warriors from Philadelphia, who have beaten Columbia 45 times since 1878. Columbia has won three games and one was a tie.

Williams and Amherst have met 45 times since 1884 with Williams the victor 24 times and Amherst on 17. Four games ended in ties. Comparative records this year indicate a closely fought game.

Colgate appears to pack too much power for Syracuse this year and expects its seventeenth victory of the series.

Unbeaten Cornell may not be that way after the thirteenth meeting with Dartmouth, which has won 1 of the 12 previous meetings, the other five going to Cornell. In the last, eight meetings the two teams have scored an aggregate of 373 points, an average of more than 47 to a game.

Tufts looks good enough to record its nineteenth victory over Bowdoin. Pittsburgh's unconquered Panthers take on hardy city rival in Carnegie Tech; Harvard may find the Holy Cross defense hard to pierce. Dartmouth and Elkins, unbeaten thus far, take on Harvard's crack Villanova outfit. One of the toughest games of the day will bring together Bucknell and Penn state.

Georgetown should win from West Virginia, although the score may be close and Lehigh will be favored over Rutgers. Boston college invades the mid-west again for a Friday game with Marquette.

GARDEN SECURES CONTRACTS OF TWO MORE HEAVYWEIGHTS

Fugazy Gives Up His Claim to Schmeling, Scott and Campolo

New York.—(P)—Madison Square Garden again has taken a strange hold on the promotion of a heavyweight fight with a $75,000 deal for the services of Max Schmeling of Germany; Phil Scott of England, and Victorio Campolo of the Argentine.

After weeks of dickerings with Humbert Fugazy, rival promoter, the Garden announced that Schmeling, Scott and Campolo would fight for the house that Tex Rickard built.

The deal gives the Garden a virtual monopoly on the services of the four leading heavy weight contenders for Gene Tunney's vacant throne. Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor, already is under contract to the Garden for a fight at Miami in February. The negotiations with Fugazy transfer to the garden contracts on Campolo's services for four fights; and on Scott's and Schmeling's for one each.

The way now seems to be paved for Schmeling's return to American rings. Schmeling and his American manager, Joe Jacobs, were suspended by the New York State Athletic commission for Schmeling's failure to fight Scott for Fugazy last summer. The garden later was threatened with suspension if it continued to dicker with Schmeling.

But with Fugazy's withdrawal the commission's objections apparently have been met. Since Fugazy has abandoned his contracts on Scott and Schmeling there does not appear to be any good reason why Schmeling should not be reinstated. Indications now are that the garden will attempt to match Schmeling and Sharkey for the mid winter show at Miami.

MEMBERS OF YORK'S HEROIC LITTLE BAND IN SCATTERED JOBS

And Even Now They Can't Understand How He Got
All the Glory

BY ROBERT TALLEY
Copyright, 1929, NEA Service, Inc.
"It was like this," says ex-Private George W. Willis who lives with his wife and two boys in a little frame house near the city camps in South Philadelphia and has a job as a teamster, driving a feed wagon from 5 a. m. to 7 p. m. every day except Sunday.
"It was like this," he repeats, "all us fellows made the capture and should be credited alike, but Sergeant York seems to have got all the glory."
But listen to ex-Sergeant Harry M. Parsons, now the owner and manager of an auto accessory store in Brooklyn, N. Y., where he sent York and his handful of companions into one of the hottest engagements in the World War.
"Alvin York deserves every bit of the credit given him," says ex-Sergeant Parsons. "His was the greatest achievement in the war."
CONTRIVENCY STILL ON
Eleven years after the conflict ended the controversy is still on. Official Washington seems to incline to ex-Sergeant Parsons' view, but the boys who went through hell with Sergeant York on that historic day in the Argonne forest and have long since gone back to civilian jobs take pretty much the same views as ex-Private Willis.
But let's see what they are doing today.

It is October 8, 1923, on Hill 223 in the Argonne sector near Chateau-Chierry. German machine guns high up on the slope are raining death on the Americans and Sergeant Harry M. Parsons, of Company C, 25th Infantry, orders Acting Sergeant Bernard Early to take two squads and put the enemy machine guns out of action. Early takes 13 men, including Corporal Alvin C. York, and advances stealthily through the dense woods and across the hill via an old trench. Suddenly they find they are behind the German lines.
A moment later they run smack into 25 or 30 Germans, including a major and several other officers, grouped behind the dense woods and across the hill via an old trench. Suddenly they find they are behind the German lines.
Despite his hazardous position and the disparity in numbers, Sergeant Early decides to attack and the Americans open fire. Some shots are returned but most of the Germans, believing they are surrounded by a large force, yell "Kamerad" and surrender with upraised hands. The Americans surround them at the point of bayonets.
SUDDENLY, the German machine guns on the hill realize what has happened, reverse their guns and open fire. Hill breaks loose. Germans and Americans alike drop flat on their bellies. In the first blast of fire, six Americans are killed outright, literally shot to pieces.
Sergeant Early gets a bullet through his body and two other wounds, but bullets rip through Corporal Odis B. Merrithew's arm. Private Mario Muzzi gets it in the shoulder.
With six of the detachment killed and three others wounded, including both of the other non-commissioned officers, Corporal York takes command. With him are seven men: Privates George W. Willis, Michael A. Sacina, Polack Donahue, Thomas G. Johnson, Feodor Sok, Joe Konotski and Percy Seardsley.
The seven privates are busy tending the 30 prisoners, all crouched on the ground for protection, and are shielded by them from the German fire. That is all that saves them.

Lying on his left with his dead and wounded companions scattered around him, Corporal York begins picking off the German machine gunners on the hillside with his rifle. Countless streams of machine gun bullets miss him, as if by a miracle. In a momentary lull, he calls to them to come down and surrender. The answer is a headlong charge by eight Germans. York, shooting as straight and as coolly as he shot squirrels in his native Tennessee mountains, shoots them down one by one in quick succession as they lunge for him.
KILL 28 GERMANS
York has fired exactly 28 shots—and 28 Germans are dead.
"Don't shoot any more. I'll order them a surrender and throw down their arms," says the German major. Surrender they do—and so Corporal York and his little band march back to the American lines with 132 captives. Privates Beardsley, Konotski, Sok, Willis and Sacina march beside them, bayonets ready. Bringing up the rear is the badly wounded Corporal Merrithew, leaning heavily on Private Donahue. Sergeant Early is supported by another comrade. Private Muzzi, despite his bleeding shoulder, is able to walk unassisted.
Eleven years have brought a lot of changes for those men who were through hell with Sergeant York that day. York himself is living quietly on his Tennessee farm that the grateful people of his state bought for him. Sergeant Early is now married and has two children, Charles and Bernard, Jr. He lives in New Haven, Conn., and operates a small restaurant. He waits on the tables while his wife does the cooking.
For what he did that day, Early spent five months in a hospital. Just the other day—11 years, less three days after his heroic exploit—the government awarded him the Congressional Medal of Honor. Early is the only one so decorated. Four of the others got brigade citations for gallantry—but that was all.
MERRITHUEW IS NOW
Corporal Merrithew lives at Brookline, Mass., and has a job at driving a truck for the state highway department. Two little daughters brighten his home, Jeanne, 11 months, and Anna, 5—and he values them more than he does his one good lung. (Gas, if you must know.) He enlisted and served under the name of William B. Cutting—a name he adopted when he ran away from home as a boy—and is so identified in Sergeant York's book.
Private Muzzi's old wound in his shoulder doesn't interfere with his job as a baker at the National Biscuit Co. plant in New York City, although it cost him two months in the hospital back in 1918.
Private Beardsley has gone back to his father's farm near Roxbury, Conn. He is the son of "Nate" Beardsley, a champion breeder of Devonshire cattle. He has never married.
Private Konotski is a mill worker at Holyoke, Mass., and has two children. Not long ago when the War Department planned to reenact the York episode in a military spectacle at Washington, they were supposed to send an airplane to bring him in. Escorted by the local American Legion post and chamber of commerce, Konotski clamped out to the airport to take off. But somebody in Washington forgot to send the plane; after waiting four hours, Konotski and his escort gave up in disgust and went home.

The whereabouts of Private Sok is unknown. The War Department records his address as 33 Barnes street, Ashley, Penn., but inquiry there brought no answer. The same applies to Private Johnson, last reported as living at 424 Ninth st., Denison, Tex.

HAT CHECKER IN SHOP
Private Sacina, born in Italy and reared in New York, was working at a wire spring factory here when he was drafted in 1918. He told a reporter the other day that since his return from the army he has had very bad luck, he's out of a job quite often. He is a very small man. Recently he applied for a job as a subway guard and was turned down because he was too short; the employment agent didn't think him big enough to handle the rush hour crowds. Just now he has the door and hat checking concession in a New York barber shop.

Private Donahue is a mill worker in Lawrence, Mass., but has had the misfortune to be out of a job recently. He is unmarried.

Private Willis, already mentioned, drives his feed wagon in South Philadelphia every day and not even his customers knew that he is a war hero. He's had a lot of hard luck, too.

STORE IS SUCCESS
Sergeant Parsons, who ordered Acting Sergeant Early to take the two squads and put the German machine guns out of action, and who is pretty much of a war hero, himself, is making a success of his auto accessory store in Brooklyn. He was the first to see York and his little band come trooping back to the American lines with their 132 prisoners—and could hardly believe his eyes.

And what about the other members of the York party, the six who "went west," as the doughboys used to say? They were Corporal Murray Savage, Privates Marjan L. Dymowski, Ralph E. Weller, Fred Warnings, William Wine and Carl Swanson.

The hill that was stained with their blood became their monument. They buried them where they fell.

PURCHASING POWER IS HIGH IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia.—Purchasing power is high throughout this territory. Retail sales are steady or the increase and some merchants predict the full time sales will be higher than those of last year. Reports from wholesalers and jobbers also indicate a similar trend. Freight shipments of dry and manufactured products are heavy.

MAY LAUNCH MOVE TO BUILD UNION FREE HIGH SCHOOL

Superintendent of Schools to Call Meeting at Bear Creek Soon

Bear Creek—A movement to secure for Bear Creek a Union Free high school is being started in the village and surrounding community. It is expected that a meeting will be held at the school house in the village to determine the sentiment of the people.

Present quarters are inadequate for the number of students which the school wishes to accommodate and unless a new building is provided, tuition students will have to be refused next year, according to the school superintendent. Tuition fees pay for teachers' salaries and with the prospect of refusing such students next year another item of expense will fall on the people of the village.

The Flanagan Brothers Canning factory is handling the year's cabbage crop at this time. An average of tons a day is brought in averaging 3,000 tons a year. Two thirds of this is converted into kraut and the other third is shipped in its original form for table use.

Considerable of the output is stored in the warehouse here and at the other 21 stations which comprise the company. All kraut is shipped in bulk, usually in containers of 40 or 45 gallons each.

Legs of five, ten and fifteen gallon capacity are also put up for delivery.

At present the local factory is employing 60 hands both men and women and will retain the force which is taken on about the middle of July until about Nov. 15. After this only about fifteen are kept on the payroll to take care of shipping.

Aside from the canning of kraut, the factory can also plant and cultivate the pickles season beginning in July and lasting through August.

PEACE ATTITUDE GROWING IN WORLD

surance against war. The phrase "a war to end war" was revived by the central in the years immediately following the armistice, as squabbles arose between nations and the larger powers were too enfeebled to compel tranquility by the use of either moral or economic force. But successive steps for war prevention have been taken ever since the disbanding of the isolationist policies which were thought to be America's purpose in rejecting the league covenant. Relatively little is heard about the league but a great deal about "international cooperation" so much so that this phrase may be regarded as the embodiment of American policy.

The security of the American government in the councils of the world has given Europe particularly renewed hope that a concert of powers can in reality function as a preventive of war. The Hoover-MacDonald understandings included two powers—Great Britain and the United States. It looks toward the solution of problems in the Atlantic. It is not always remembered but there is a four-power agreement with reference to problems in the Pacific. It was adopted in 1922 as an accompaniment to the treaty limiting naval armament. The four powers are France, Great Britain, Japan and the United States. These four nations acting in concert can maintain the peace of the world by moral force.

If the London conference shall develop into a five-power agreement including Italy in the treaty, as seems likely if the naval questions can be settled, then the world will have witnessed the formation of what might in a sense be regarded as an official international organization for peace, working along with the league or nations and its covenant and creating and adding to the strength of the Kellogg-Briand treaties as well. For the movement toward the prevention of war by all practical means that nations can devise is stronger today than it was eleven years ago, and each year of memory of the sacrifices made in the great war is adding pressure to the urge for permanent peace.

REGINA POOL RAISES EGG, POULTRY PRICES

Regina, Saskatchewan—(P)—Eggs to the number of 1,483,183 dozen, having a cash value of $400,000, were marketed through the Saskatchewan Egg and Poultry Pool last year. The average price paid was the highest ever returned to the producer by the pool, Mrs. John Holmes, president, says.

She believes that removal of the dumping duty on eggs, permitting American eggs to come into the province freely, might seriously affect egg prices.

COMMERCE IN ENGLAND, IRELAND IS LIVELY

Dublin—(P)—The latest official figures show that the trade of the Free State is almost entirely with Great Britain.

The director of statistics says that no livestock trade between any two countries in the world approaches the dimensions of that between the Free State and Great Britain, including northern Ireland. Britain buys twice as much poultry from the Free State as she does from France and the nearest competitor. Of all customers of Britain the Free State ranks fifth in the world as a supplier of goods. As a customer of Britain the Free State imports $175,659,000 worth of produce and manufactures. The United States imports, at the present rate, approximately $233,129,000 yearly from Britain.

Plain Satin, Moire Pumps Are Bursting Forth With Pale Stones

New York—More and more, the shoe shows for the buckle and the buckle for the shoe. Plain satin in pumps for formal or semi-formal occasions is a bursting forth of large buckles of pale, sensitive stones, either transparent or translucent. Aquamarine, in the body of the shoe, with the vogue for green, make beautiful buckles. So also do rock crystal and the more faintly colored topaz.

their appearance, together with woollen gowns. Reiboux has designed a gown in big volumes of two tones of rose, to be worn over a gown of ivory tulle. The skirt is draped over one shoulder and held closely to the figure in a way of which Reiboux would thoroughly disapprove. The gown is a simple affair, but the skirt is so arranged that it can be so constructed as to reveal the figure. But there it is.

Now that we are back in the fashion line of 1850, the dot again becomes extremely dominant. Many of the new gowns and suits are patterned after the styles of the 1850s, but with a modern twist. The skirts are full and the waists are high. The dresses are made of silk and satin, and are decorated with lace and ribbons. The hats are also in the style of the 1850s, with large brims and high crowns. The shoes are also in the style of the 1850s, with high heels and lace-up details.

WARNING!

OUR policy has always been to refrain from referring to any of our competitors—however a certain radio competitor has been so unethical that we simply must give facts in order to protect our business interests.

This Radio Dealer tried to get the agency of the Silver Radio—after he was refused by the Milwaukee Jobber he wrote to the manufacturer in Chicago—then after he was refused an agency, he purchased several Silver Receivers from a dealer—whereupon he represented to prospective purchasers that he had the Silver Agency. Then by placing a poor set of tubes in these he proceeded to demonstrate the Silver Radio just to show his prospects that the Silver did not perform satisfactorily.

We have come in contact with this so often that we think it is very important for a prospective purchaser to know the facts.

We are the only franchised dealer in Appleton for the Silver Radio and no Silver Radio Receivers have ever been shipped into Appleton by the jobber or factory to anyone but us.

THE LUXURY HUSBAND

CHAPTER I
BARBARA observed an uncontrollable impulse when she left Ralph Henderson stranded in the middle of the dance floor. On a moment she was dancing down the deck, and the next moment, glancing idly towards the orchestra, she found herself staring into the face of Ray Lowther.
She thought at first that she must be dreaming. It could not possibly be Ray Lowther, the one-time squire of the Yale crew, the heir to oil millions.
She looked again, and remained staring this time. Most certainly it was Ray. There could be no mistaking his tall lean figure that had hardly a spare ounce of flesh upon it, nor his face that might have been handsome had it not been for the slightly flattened nose and the overlarge mouth that took a crooked twist when he smiled.
The young saxophonist did not see her coming until she was almost at his elbow, and when he did, he merely said in the most natural voice in the world:
"Hello, Barbara."
His tone nonplussed her. It would seem as though they were more acquaintances; as though the old relationship had never existed.
"I didn't know you were on board," she said at last, feeling very small and very foolish, which was a new experience for Barbara.
"No? That's not surprising; I went down with the 'fin' directly we sailed and tonight is my first appearance, professional or otherwise."
And he smiled that odd twisted smile of his that Barbara remembered so well.
"I'm sorry," she said lamely.
To herself she was saying, "This can't be real. This can't possibly be real. It's absurd. Ray and me—and were talking as though we were strangers."
Any special time you'd like to request, I remember you used to be crazy about 'Sleepy Time Gal' or 'That Certain Parry.'"
His expression was serious, but there was a bantering tone in his voice, and Barbara hearing it, suddenly bit her lip. He seemed to be purposely making fun of her; trying to hurt her as he had done in the past.
She saw that he did not intend to refer to the past; that he regarded everything between them as finished. But the girl felt that she could not leave it at that. Somehow she must make him clear up the mystery that hung like a cloud over those last few years.
"I'd like to talk to you sometime, Ray."
He did not answer for a moment, and when he did, the mocking smile had left his face.
"What's the use, Barbara? Isn't it wisest to leave things as they are?"
The girl shook her head and one little blue-sheeled eye nervously traced a pattern on the deck.
"Not for me, Ray. There's so much I don't understand. Meet me somewhere after you're through playing tonight."
He hesitated. Suddenly the whole situation appeared to him decidedly ironical.
Odd that Barbara Landon, with more money than she knew how to spend, the magnet for every foreigner with a title for sale, should be asking a favor of him.
"Of course, Barbara. I'll meet you if you wish. But honestly, I don't see much sense in it. It'll be like a mad journey to the moon for both of us."
For the last few seconds the pianist had been striking chords at random, now he gave a signal for the others to tune in with him on the next fox-trot. Ray turned to pick up his saxophone and Barbara said quickly: "The dance should be over by 11:30, meet me by the prow on the top deck."

CALIFORNIA ORGANIZES MOBILE ROAD PATROL

Sacramento, Cal.—(AP)—The day of speeding across a country line to avoid being presented a traffic ticket is over in California.
The formation of a state highway patrol of nearly 500 officers abolishes dual state-county enforcement of motor vehicle laws and centralizes the responsibility. Under the general heading of automobile legislation, penalties for criminally careless, drunken and incompetent drivers were stiffened.
Frank G. Snook is chief of the state division of motor vehicles and will have for his superintendent of the mobile force Eugene Biscailuz, for more than 20 years a deputy sheriff in Los Angeles county.
The patrol, a mobile body able to meet emergencies in any portion of the state, can be assigned to any area where there is an unusual traffic movement. The traffic officers, now able to pursue fleeing motorists from one county to another, are expected to cut down the number of fatalities caused by speeding and reckless driving as well as minimize automobile theft.
Biscailuz points out that his men also will reduce the use of motor cars in other criminal activities. If a crime is committed a large force of the patrolmen can be sent to the vicinity to guard all highways.
Automobile associations see another benefit in a state motor patrol. Traffic enforcement will become uniform and enforcement for revenue instead of protection of life and property, can be nullified.
There have been instances, the California Automobile Association cites, where officers, informed that city or county treasuries were low in funds, rounded up motorists to reduce the deficit.
A man who ran away from his sweetheart explains in tomorrow's chapter.

ANDY PAYNE'S MOTHER SCORNS RUNNING WATER

Claremore, Okla.—(AP)—Andy Payne's parents now live in their new home, built with a part of the $25,000 he received for winning the trans-continental marathon last spring.
Andy, after paying off the mortgage on his father's farm, told carpenters to build for his mother the best rural home in Rogers county. He wanted it equipped with running water.
But Mrs. Payne thought a running sor in the family was enough. "I have carried water from the spring all my life," she said, "and I am going to keep it up till the last sunset."

MEXICO PLANS PAVING OF LAREDO HIGHWAY

Laredo, Tex.—(AP)—American tourists may enter Mexico from Laredo over one of the southern republic's best paved highways.
Mexican officials have announced that the 130 miles between Laredo and Monterrey, once the "American city of Mexico," are to be paved. The new slab will be called Nuevo Laredo-Monterrey highway.
As a result of plans for this road, Monterrey intends to build a 200-room hotel for tourists. It will be leased to and operated by American hotel men.

MONDAY IS FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF RADIO ARMISTICE

Assignments of Majority of Stations Were Switched Year Ago

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
Washington—Monday the eleventh anniversary of the signing of the armistice ending hostilities among warring nations, also marked the first anniversary of radio's armistice with chaos and confusion in broadcasting.

It was exactly a year ago that the federal radio commission effected its big shift in the broadcast spectrum, switching the assignments of all but a handful of the 620 stations then on the air. It was the major offensive to reclaim reception from the heterodynes and jumbles that had engulfed it by lack of regulation, and generally the results have been favorable.

All is not yet serene in broadcasting, for new problems have cropped up, and will continue to do so. As a matter of fact the broadcasting set-up must be kept fluid, and not permitted to stagnate, for then the amazing development that has marked radio would end abruptly. Now again the commission shifts its position in particular regions, but these local changes and it will continue to do this to crive out interferences.

There is virtual agreement among radio leaders that the reallocation served its intended purpose. Some still contend it was not sufficiently sweeping and that even more than 40 cleared channels should have been set aside for high powered broadcasting stations to serve the remote listener. Even now there is a definite movement to clear 10 additional channels, so that each of the five zones might have two more than its present share of eight.

TOO MANY STATIONS

Broadcasting's greatest problem today is too many stations on the air, with the resultant extreme congestion. Again, everybody interested in radio regulation agrees that the number of stations should be sharply reduced, but the engine is how to do it.

The sharp falling off of complaints about interference and the optimism expressed by the radio industry attest to the general improvement in reception conditions and the successful campaign thus far waged against man-made interferences. Technical improvements in receiving equipment, permitting sharper tuning, improved clarity of reception, likewise have helped to sweep away listener discontent.

Captain Bur Hill, now chief engineer of the commission, and its broadcast engineer when the allocation was worked out, believes conditions have improved materially. "Conditions seem to be improving every day," he said. "Better equipment making possible higher performance of modulation of stations, improved assignments, and higher power on cleared channels all have made toward these improvements."

Both Captain Hill and Commissioner Harold A. LaFontaine believe that there should be an immediate and arbitrary reduction in the number of broadcasting stations. According to the latter, perfection conditions have improved materially. "Conditions seem to be improving every day," he said. "Better equipment making possible higher performance of modulation of stations, improved assignments, and higher power on cleared channels all have made toward these improvements."

LISTENERS SATISFIED
What an average listener thinks of broadcasting conditions today as compared to a year ago, is reflected in a letter received by Commissioner LaFontaine from Rubin Brown, of Sierra Madre, Calif. Mr. Brown is remembered as the individual who, some months back, complained about a Hollywood station, which broadcast all night, blanketing out reception of Japanese and Australian stations. He says the commission has corrected conditions.

Here's what Mr. Brown says the commission has done for reception: Provided favorable wave lengths and increased power of popular stations; grouped the undesirable local stations where they do not clutter up the dial and cause interference with superior stations; increased the power of leading U. S. stations permitting distant stations to come in with good volume; minimized interference by punishing stations violating regulations; decreased confusion by ordering stations to announce one each fifteen minutes; Improved the quality of programs because stations raised their standard of programs to secure favorable wave lengths; decreased objectionable advertising for same reasons and made reception of foreign stations possible by clearing wave lengths.

HOLLYWOOD QUIET IN CAMPAIGN ON "CANNED MUSIC"

Musicians There Are Making Good Money Now and Are Satisfied

BY HAROLD E. SWISHER
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
Hollywood, Calif. — While a half million dollar publicity campaign against "canned music" is forming a "weeping wall" for over a quarter of a million members of the American Federation of Musicians, local members of the organization continue pounding out fresh melodies for the sound firm industry.

Hollywood musicians have turned a somewhat unsympathetic ear to the voices lifted in protest against the "Mechanical Robot" which recently entered theatres throughout the country and with one giant heave tossed thousands of saxophone, cellist and trombone artists out into the street to learn a new trade or seek seclusion in poverty now.

Calm has been the reaction of 1,200 local members of the musicians' union of the half-price advertisements which their organization has been spreading over the land in its protest. The reason is not hard to find. Local musicians are making, for the first time in their lives, concert artists' wages recording this very "canned music" against which their less fortunately situated brethren are protesting.

Fat salaries are being gleaned by these local instrumentalists from the ripening field of synchronized motion pictures. Constant of this, the union has placed a check on them designed to prevent them from becoming too wealthy all at once and retiring to hilltop villas along with the stars whose theme songs they record.

These restrictions prevent a musician from unlimbering his fiddle on a new job any week when he already has played nine hours. The difficulty of enforcing this edict is that if the synchronizing assignment a musician is working on lasts all week or longer, as it frequently does, there is quite a fat little check waiting on Saturday night, figured at the usual $10 an hour rate.

In one studio, however, the union's diatribe against mechanical music is upheld. Jesse L. Lasky, executive vice president of Paramount, rous the idea that grand opera can be brought to the screen. Max Finston, Lasky's musical director, is frank in stating in his opinion that within six months or so ma and pa and the kiddies will be clamoring for an orchestra back in the theater pit. Finston believes with the union that the public will rise and demand the "human element."

CHICAGO MAKING GOOD HEADWAY IN HOUSE CLEANING

Shake-up of Police Department Already Under Way There

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
Chicago — The task of purifying the public service here in the country's most interesting municipal laboratory—first undertaken by voters in their revolt of eighteen months ago—is making steady headway.

Right now the police department, long out of favor with the public because of the suspicion that it might not lack connections with the underworld it is supposed to suppress, is being shaken.

At the same time, the whole civil service is getting careful scrutiny by the state attorney's office and evidence of wholesale bartering of jobs is beginning to crop out. One member of the civil service board is facing trial and political job holders are insecure in their places.

In the police department, William F. Russell, the commissioner, has set out to place his force on a fighting basis. This move is being spurred on by activity of investigators for States Attorney John A. Swanson. They already have several captains on trial for alleged connection with the former highly profitable slot machine syndicate and for office during the 1928 primary election.

Clean-up orders issued by Commissioner Russell have been followed by raids conducted under direction of Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the states attorney. Wherever a district is found in which the captain has failed to carry out the chief's instructions, quick action results.

CITY TIGHTENING UP

Eleven captains recently were shifted by one order of the commissioner and one more was suspended to face charges before the police board. Those who don't make good

SHESTAKOV GIVEN CREDIT FOR LONG SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT

Other Members of Soviet Air Crew Praise "Chief" as Guiding Hand

BY DONN SUTTON
New York—(AP)—The other three flyers, that Semyon Sheshtakov did it. They gesticulated, spoke rapidly in Russian, pointed at their little chief, smiled, nodded. He, they insisted, was the one responsible for the success of their hazardous 13,300 mile flight from Moscow to New York.

Semyon Sheshtakov, the Soviet Linderberg, shaved quite bald and standing only 5 feet 3 inches in his Russian boots, protested this, nervously flicked ash from a profit cigarette, and spoke words of praise for his flying companions.

The Soviet crew of the comradeship of men had its initial "air test" in the first eastward flight of a heavy-lift aircraft from Europe to America which ended here the other day.

AN ASSORTED CREW
For in the background of this pioneering voyage lay the amazing story of a flight which sent a peasant, a wealthy doctor's son, a factory laborer and a famed scientist winging through space as herds of a new day in Russia.

And if there was any priority on the flight, it was not given to the scientist or to the rich man's son, but to Sheshtakov, the chief pilot—former metal worker and chauffeur. And his second pilot was Philip Bolotin, a son of the soil with generations of downy peasant ancestors behind him.

The scientist was scholarly, bespectacled Boris Sterligov, astronomer and inventor, who went along as navigator to test out some new flying instruments of his own design.

The rich man's son, Dimitri Fufayev? He was the mechanic.

PURPOSE OF FLIGHT
These four comrades braved the perils of unexplored skies in the giant Russian-built monoplane "Land of the Soviets" which took off from Moscow August 23, financed by the Soviet Air Society, on a flight of "experiment and good will."

"We have sought to prove the feasibility of a regular eastward air line from Central Europe to America on a route which is mostly over land and which covers no stretches of water comparable in width to the Atlantic ocean," explained Sheshtakov, through an interpreter.

"We attempted to set no speed or endurance records. Two months were taken to the flight so we might map out and study carefully the region we traversed with view to definitely linking Russia and America by air in the future. It was a flight of exploration as much as anything else. Our actual flying time for the 13,300 miles was only 140 hours."

HAZARDS NUMEROUS
"We were handicapped by poor landing facilities, of course, and were compelled to face many dangers that would not be duplicated if the route over which we flew were to be built into a modern, scientific airway, with facilities for accurately gauging and reporting the weather."

"Our flight covered great stretches of territory never before traversed by plane, such as the vast, uninhabited marshy forests of Siberia. Because of having no knowledge of weather conditions ahead, we were forced to proceed blindly into the stormy North Pacific ocean, which is particularly dangerous in the fall."

LITTLE JOE

THE LINE WIRE IS SELDOM STEPPED ON.

The "Land of the Soviets" flew 5 miles through dense black smoke of fires raging in Siberian forests. From China to Blagovestchensk, near the Manchurian border, there was the triple menace of sandstorms, violent winds—and Chinese bullets.

Storms, heavy banks of fog, snow, hail and rain impelled them between Kamchatka and Attu, westernmost of the Aleutian Islands.

SAVED BY CUTTER
Forced down and nearly wrecked on the rocks at Dutch Harbor, Unalaska, after a terrific battle with a southeast gale, they were rescued by the crew of the United States navy cutter Chelan. The plane was tied to a buoy while repairs were made. On the final stage of their flight to Seattle they several times were out of communication with the world and reported lost.

But they "came through" just as they had come through before. For this wasn't the first time that these men of such diversified rearing had set out together on the broad skyway of adventure.

They met in aviation schools during the days that an awakening nation was first teaching its youths to march side by side toward progress. Peasant, rich man's son, laborer and intellectual found themselves friends

NO INCREASE IN TARIFF FOR LARGE CREAM SEPARATORS

Senator John J. Blaine Led Fight in Committee Against Boost

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Washington Corres. of Post-Crescent

Washington—Wisconsin dairy co-operators, cheese factories, and big dairy farmers using large cream separators will not have to pay a higher duty on their machines.

The senate, by rejecting the senate finance committee's proposal to increase the duty, guaranteed that no increase will be contained in this tariff bill, for as the bill now stands, the senate and the house of representatives are in agreement, and the conference committee can change nothing on which both houses agree.

Senator John J. Blaine of Boschell led the fight against the proposed increase. At present, there is a 25 per cent duty on cream separators valued at more than $50 each. The senate finance committee proposed to make this duty applicable to all imported cream separators costing as much as $40 each, thus bringing in a group not hitherto taxed by the customs.

In arguing against the amendment, Senator Blaine explained that it referred only to the larger separators used by co-operators, some cheese factories, and the very large dairy farmers, and did not have any in a mysterious new world of whirling propellers and man-made wings.

HONORED BY SOVIET
They have studied together over the capitals of Central Europe. They have made hazardous exhibition flights that have done most to arouse enthusiasm for aviation in their native land. And, two years ago, they flew from Moscow to Tokyo—the first flyers to cross the Siberian wastes—and for this were awarded the "Red Banner," highest of Soviet honors.

Now, safe in New York, they're looking for new sky trails to follow. If weather reports over the Atlantic are favorable, and if their plane is in shape, they're going on—together.

SCHOOL PRINCIPALS MEET WITH ROHAN

Grade school principals will meet at the offices of B. J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, in Lincoln school at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to discuss students and school problems. Reports also will be heard.

ISSUES NINETY-THREE PERMITS LAST MONTH

Ninety-three electrical permits were issued last month by Louis Luebbe, electrical inspector. There has been a substantial increase during the past few months.

Application to the smaller separator used by the individual farmer. He said:

BLAINE'S TALK
"I do not now recall how many cooperative creameries and cheese factories there are in my own state, but they run into the hundreds, and a great many of these cooperative creameries separate the milk that is delivered by the farmers to the creameries. These co-operative creameries belong to the farmers."

"Then there is also the individual-owned creamery, owned by one or two men, it may be a group of citizens of a small village or a small town who have organized themselves to promote the interests of the community, and they operate the creamery, not so much for direct profits to themselves, but rather to encourage the development of their community, and thereby reap the benefit of that larger development."

"The cream separators under discussion are that type of cream separators. So this question goes directly to the question of the cost of farm operations and the processing of a farm product in some cases directly by the farmer, in other cases, such as I have described, by those once removed from the farmer, but whose interest in the operation is for the development of their community or village or city, as well as the countryside, as a dairy community. I can see no justification for an increased tariff on that type of cream separator. The proposal to increase the tariff increases the cost of farming operations."

Sensor David A. Reed of Pennsylvania said that this type of separator is laid down in the United States for $24 and it sells for $31, says about $13.50, the trade-in for the old separator.

SHOW MEDICAL FILM AT ROTARY MEETING

L. N. Stoner to Give Illustrated Talk on Fight Against Germs

How ammunition is obtained for the never-ending war against disease will be shown in a motion picture at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at Conway Hotel at 12:15 Wednesday afternoon by L. N. Stoner, Chicago, representative of the Parke, Davis Co.

The film, produced in the laboratories of Parke, Davis Co., at Detroit, Mich., depicts the process of manufacturing biological products and more particularly with the serums and antitoxins used to control diphtheria and to immunize hundreds of thousands of school children against the disease.

Each step will be illustrated in the process of production, from the time the germs which cause the disease are collected until the life saving serum is produced and tested to insure its purity, strength and safety. An explanatory talk will be given by Mr. Stoner. He showed how diphtheria germs are collected and then cultivated in large flasks containing three or four quarts of broth. The film also will be shown to nurses at St. Elizabeth hospital Wednesday evening.

GLAMOR OF WAR ONLY HIDES ITS SORDIDNESS

Manitowish—(P)—Men of the American Legion know that "the glamour of war" portrayed in textbooks and much of our literature is nothing but a smoke-screen to hide its sordidness. Solomon Levitan, state treasurer, said in an address before Gug Drems post of the Legion here Armistice evening.

"I realize," he said, "that men of every nation are bound to fight for their country and defend it to the last ditch, and they never should hesitate to defend its honor. But let us pray the time is not far off when every country will manifest sufficient wisdom to settle all differences by arbitration instead of guns."

Mr. Levitan, once in the service of his church, closed his speech with the hope that "the prophesy of which he intimated 'Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.'"

300 U. W. COEDS IN BIG SPORTS PROGRAM

Madison—(P)—Three hundred University of Wisconsin coeds are fighting for the honor of their sororities or dormitories and to refute the movie version of female college athletes as bare-kneed chorines in shorts with a penchant for hopping about needlessly and heaving great air-filled medicine balls.

Sports arousing their rivalry are volleyball, hockey, and basketball. Miss Louise Zinn, president of intramural girls activities swears there's nothing slow in the competition. She sees that the games start promptly and that everyone is "on the ball."

The real rivalry will begin when basketball season opens. While the varsity and interfraternity games take the headlines in city papers and the student press, the sorority house gossip is more general over the chance of the house team winning the campus championship in the cage game.

At the end of the season the Women's Athletic Association banquet is held, with every representative of sorority, rooming house or dormitory housing more than ten women attending. Then the winning groups are presented with cups.

Sixteen volleyball teams are in heated competition at present. Eight hockey teams wobble away in one of the gymnasiums and there are enough girls practicing the many art of horse-shoes that it's hard to count them.

"Ill Health Was Dragging Me Down Fast"

"I Had Been Doctoring for Over A Year When I Learned About Dreco."

"I have the highest praise for Dreco. It relieved me of my suffering when I was about ready to give up all hopes of ever getting well again. I was losing weight fast. My appetite had left me. My nerves were very bad and I was no longer able to get any rest at night. Ordinarily I would walk the floor at night trying to get some relief from indigestion. Gas used to press up around my heart, made it beat and thump like an old pump."

"Dreco soon soothed in my case and soon I was taking on the weight I had lost. My stomach is lots better and I am at last able to get some rest at night. I am rapidly improving now and all this praise goes to the new medicine, Dreco."
